What is a North Centralite?

A North Centralite is a busy young American going about the important job of becoming a mature, healthy, and happy adult. Tomorrow he will tackle the problems of the world, but today he is going to school and having fun. Full of exhuberance and boundless energy, he is always devising interesting and profitable things to do with his time.

A North Central girl finds school an exciting place with friends to meet, dates and clothes to discuss, and events to rehash. Classes are either boring or interesting. Griping is a pastime that relieves the pressure of getting an education. After school she listens to records, attends parties and club meetings, shops, and works to get money for a million and one "necessities." Then, when everything is finished, she may stay up late doing the book report that was assigned weeks ago.

A North Central boy is always on the go. During school he is distracted by the purr of a Jaguar as it speeds along route 100. He gets together with other car enthusiasts to talk about his "crate," girl, and teachers. After school a boy works on his car, takes care of the yard, walks the dog, holds a job, and tries to do a satisfactory job of his homework.

Both boys and girls suffer from spring fever, examination blues, teachers who don't understand them, and parents who do not realize that three hours is absolutely necessary for certain phone calls. But, no matter how much they complain, North Centralites, like teen-agers everywhere, manage to learn and to have fun wherever they are and in whatever they are doing.

One of the privileges of attending a new school is having a public showcase in which to display class projects. Sybil Hudgins, Marilyn Westfall, and Sally Richwine arrange stuffed animals made in the Child Development class.

North Centralites do "k. p." duty after eating a hearty lunch. Ronnie Gill stuffs waste paper in a container while Dave Anderson and Corwin Reynolds put their trays on the conveyor belt which leads to the dish washers.

Once a month North Centralites receive a small but welcome vacation from studies when the fire alarm sends them out into the fresh air, for a few moments in the sun before returning to classes.

of all teen-agers going to high school

Each day a North Centralite spends at least seven and a half hours in school. There he is given the opportunity to select the classes and activities which will best help him develop his mental ability, and social poise, while working toward a goal of becoming a responsible, productive American citizen.

The North Centralite elects subjects to fit in with any one of fifteen courses of study designed to meet varying needs. In the course of the average school week, pupils also participate in a program of departmental, special interest, and service clubs which are designed to broaden individual interests or improve skills.

In an atmosphere of learning, pupils still find occasions for relaxation. Whenever there is time, boys and girls gather to talk. Gab fests and serious discussions are carried on in halls, classrooms, the student center, and cafeteria. Assemblies, too, provide a welcome break in the daily routine of classroom activities and homework preparation.

Couples pausing to say good-bye before going to their classes are a familiar sight at North Central. Bill Buehler regularly escorts Shirley Barnett to her room.

Mr. Tomatsu Fujiwara, a visiting Fullbright teacher, discusses his native Japan with Tridi Stalle and Allan Olmsted.

He crowds work, fun and excitement

One of the school nurse's many duties is to discover health problems that need special consideration. Ilse Carter has her hearing tested by Miss Mary Doyle.

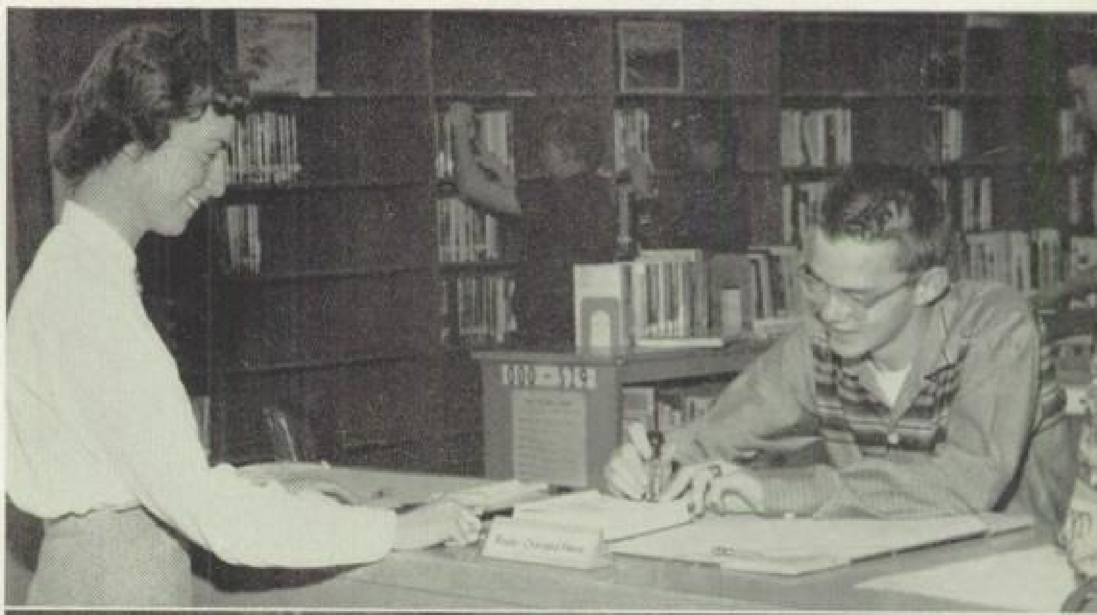
Part of a North Centralite's good adjustment comes from the counseling he receives. Mrs. Elizabeth Coffin helps Barbara Colby plan her high school schedule.

Each day many boys and girls get togther in the central foyer, the Student Center, for it is the focal point for much of the school's activity and the gathering place for friendly chats.

into eight busy hours each day of the week

Life at North Central became increasingly like "living in a gold-fish bowl" this second year. A day without visitors was a rarity. School principals from all over the country, classes from all over the state, business men, and student teachers wandered through the halls exclaiming over the building. Their first reaction was that this is a luxury school but when its functional design was explained, most people realized the economy of construction that lessened maintenance costs.

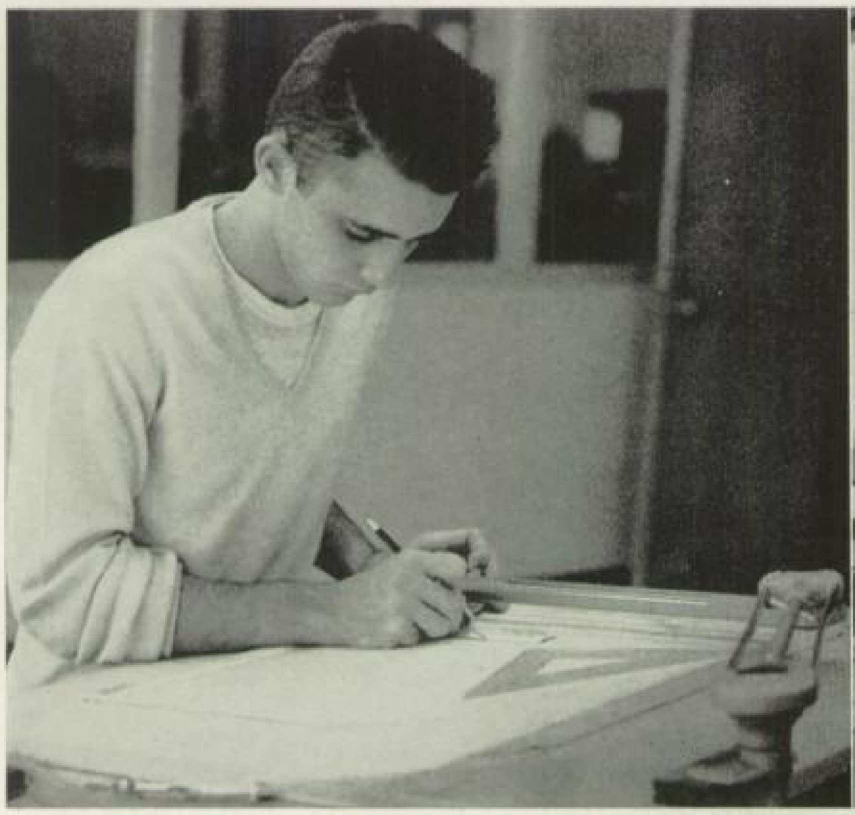
Activity concentrates in the Student Center, the hub from which wings extend. It is the place to meet friends before school, to transform for a formal dance, to use for ROTC drill, or for Spectacular practice. It serves as a theater lobby, a gym entrance, a place to register adults for night school or delegates to an educational conference. The bookstore, guidance, and health centers, office, and library cluster around it, serving all the needs of North Centralites.



Pupils keep the student librarians busy with requests for books for both reference and leisure reading. Jim Clark helps Ruth Crissman at the check-out desk.

Student help, such as Judy Edwards and Nancy Sherman, sell some of the many supplies found in the well-stocked bookstore, to customers like Carol Holmes.

Six hours a day are devoted to class work



Draftsmanship is a subject that offers no difficulty in concentration. Carl Henry is utterly engrossed in drawing the intricate lines that make a blueprint plan as attractive as a picture painted by an artist.

Most boys love to manipulate the machinery that can help them become "do it yourself" hobbyists later if they don't elect a vocation that uses this skill. Bill Hopkins and Butch Johnson operate a drill press.

Three years of English, two years of social studies, math, and physical education, one year of science, and a semester of health and safety are required of all pupils. These courses comprise one-half of the credits necessary for graduation.

Although 90% of all North Centralites are enrolled in courses in the college preparatory curriculum, the other 10% have not been neglected. Classes to train special aptitudes or to prepare those who complete their education at the high school level are provided.

Those boys who wish vocational training may select subjects in general shop, metals, drafting, printing, and industrial crafts. Girls preparing for marriage and a family often elect courses in foods, clothing, child development, and home management.

A Health and Safety course, required of all pupils, gives its members valuable training in first aid as well as knowledge of how to maintain a strong and healthy body. Rollin Thompson, Steve Walters, and Richard Peine use Craig Pinkus as their victim in a splint-applying demonstration.

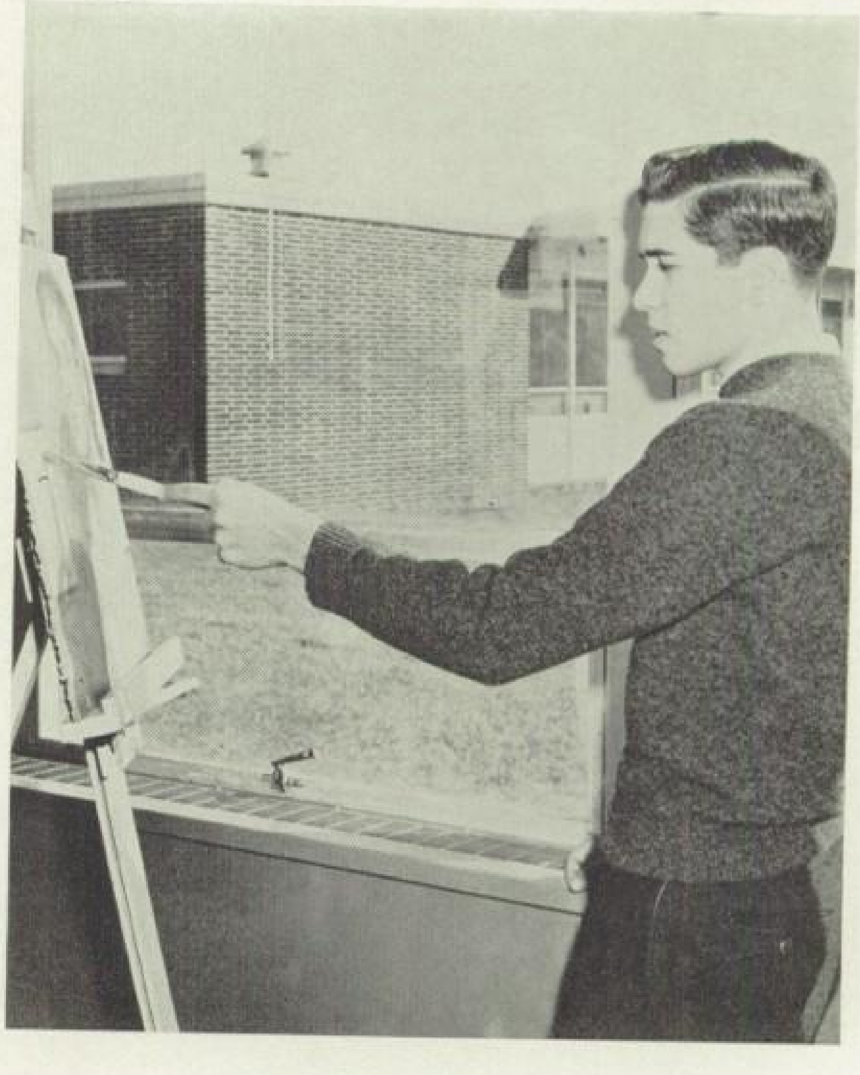
with study and activity periods added

Nothing is left to chance in Drivers' Ed. Machines are available to test reactions to typical situations. Bob Mitchell tests his braking time while Dee Shuck looks on.

People in the band spent happy hours learning "to make beautiful music together." Linda Lierman, Judy Lookabill, and Vicky Cole concentrate on their music while Mr. Robert Schlatter conducts.

North Centralites also find time to study fine arts. For would-be musicians, the band, orchestra, and ensembles, as well as vocal music groups rank high in appeal. Artistically inclined pupils have an opportunity to elect courses in drawing, painting, and crafts. Additional training in this field is given through such projects as painting scenery for stage productions and designing programs for special entertainments.

With the current trend toward more activities for teen-agers, a driver's license becomes almost a "must." North Centralites who realized that young people are often poorly trained in safe driving flocked to the driver education classes. Each semester, sections were taught every period and before and after school.



Mike Klezmer is one of those fortunates who was born with the eye and hand of an artist. The Art Department, with its excellent equipment, gave him all the tools he needed.

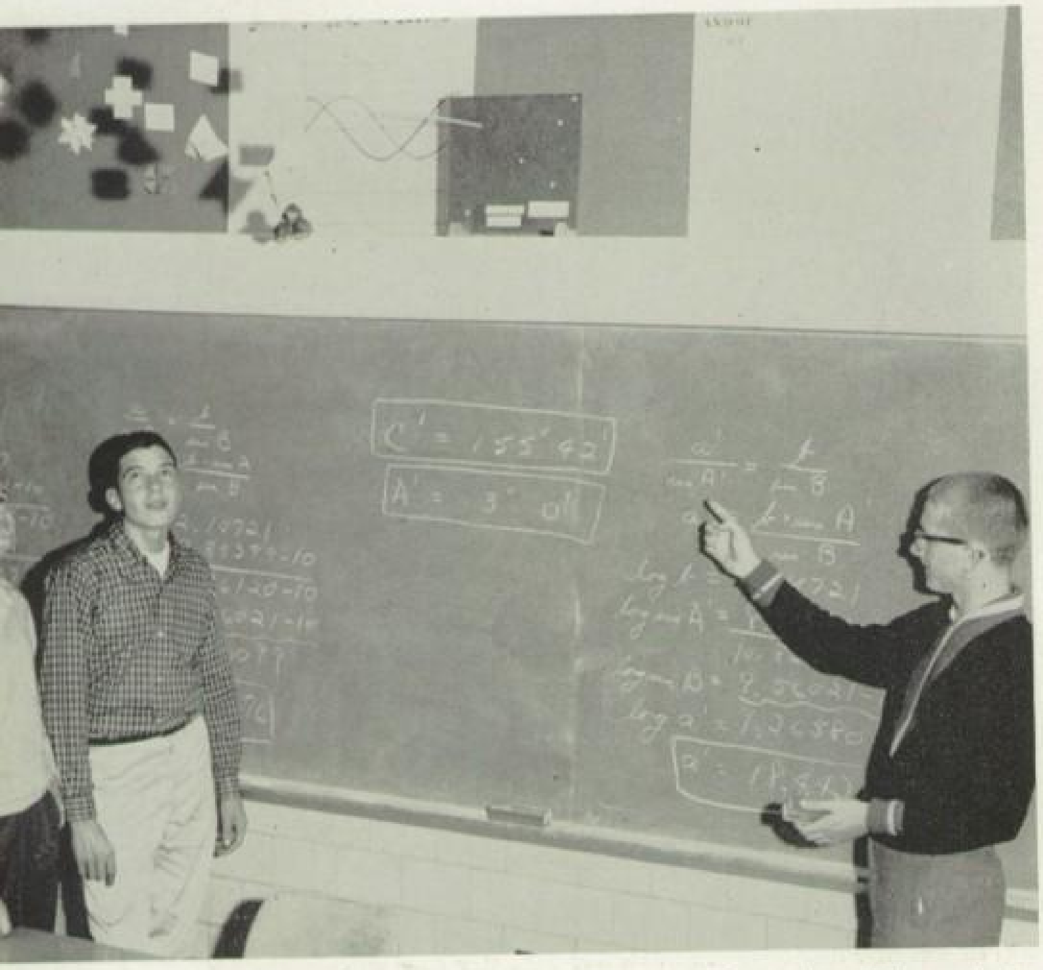
He is able to choose his own classes

A North Centralite's exuberance is somewhat curbed during the school day although it tends to break out here and there in spite of a heavy schedule.

With the launching of two Russian satellites this year, a new, unprecedented emphasis was put on education. Academic subjects in particular gained in prestige in 1958.

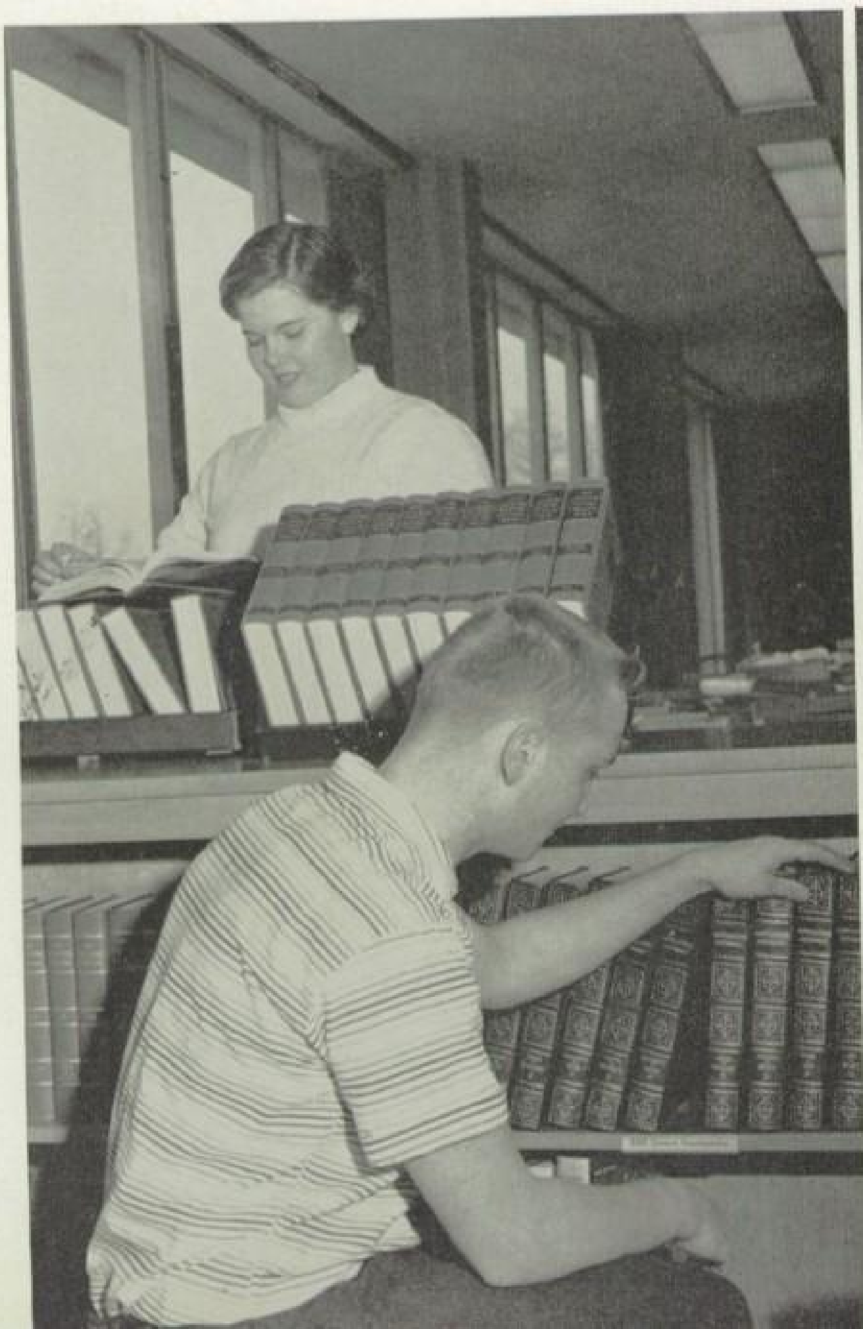
North Central answered the challenge by providing "x" classes in certain subjects, advanced chemistry, analytic geometry, and calculus courses plus the traditional high school subjects pupils will need as a background for further academic training.

The average North Centralite elects the majority of his credits from offerings in the English, Social Studies, and Foreign Language Departments, with special emphasis put on science, math, or business courses according to individual needs.



Joe Wood shows Art Hickman and Pete Egbert the mobiles made by solid geometry students to illustrate the figures which they study.

English 7c pupils work closely with the library. Sandy Bernard and Nick Ferrell use one of the sets of encyclopedias to look up information for a theme.



Equipment used by the Business Machines classes is of great interest to Linda Parrish, Marlene Winters, Lynda Lee, Judy Whitenack, and Norben Cooney.

Social Studies pupils used college research methods on the required outside reports. Bob Smith and Sue Fisher sigh with relief as they file their latest efforts.

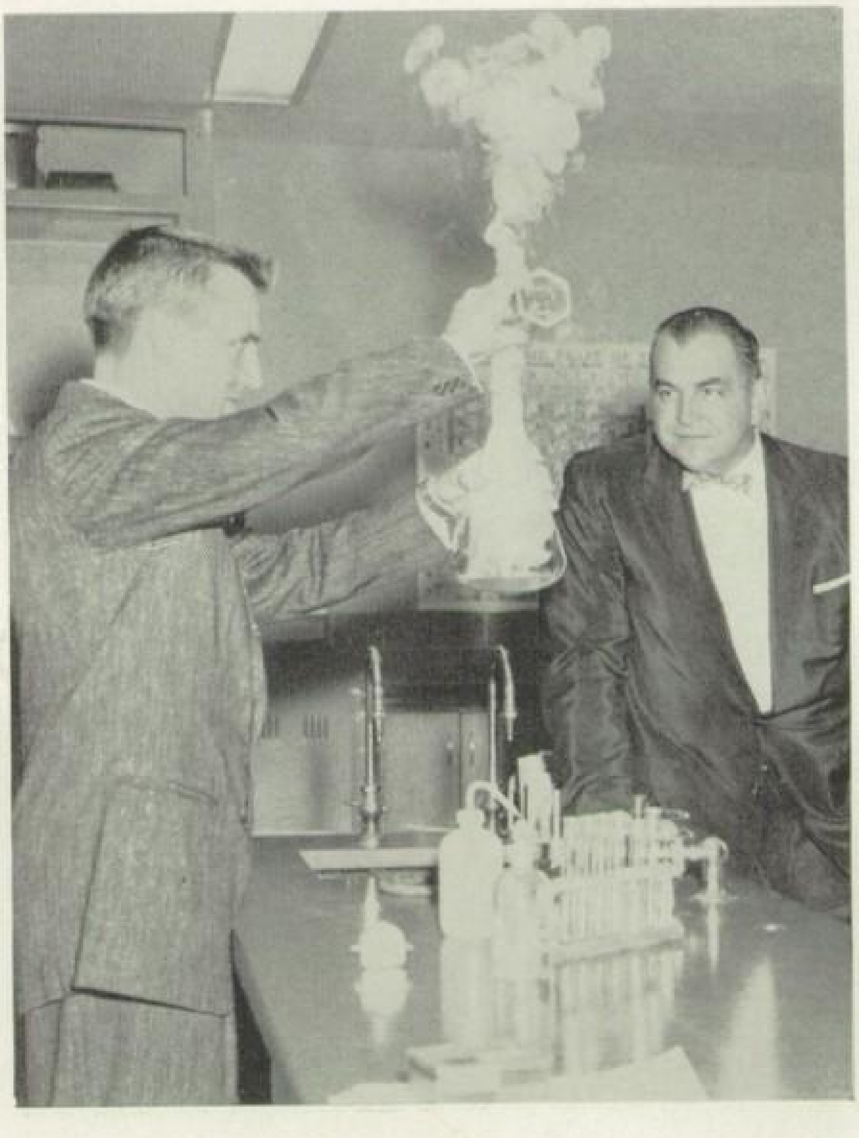
After the first year of adjustments he

A new $128,000 stadium was completed this year. Bill Johnson, Bill Land, and Jim Cluley don't play football, but they all have a vital interest in any kind of sports equipment. On a bright sunny day they inspect the workmen's progress and pronounce it excellent.

A North Centralite takes changes in his stride. After the first year, when his world literally was being built around him, he became blase over interruptions and innovations.

"Firsts" for North Central continued to make school history in 1958. For the new senior class there were many parties and new-found privileges. A Mother-Daughter Tea was sponsored by the girls' service club. The whole class got into the act for the seniors' Christmas party. Ranking highest in importance was the first graduation with all the planning, excitement, and fuss leading up to it.

Buildings and grounds were also in for changes. The long awaited furnishings for the Home Economics apartment arrived and girls were able to get on-the-spot training in housekeeping. In the main office portions of the glass walls were replaced with louvres to improve ventilation. The end of A wing was redone to house kindergarteners from Nora Grade School. Pupils and teachers alike rejoiced when the stadium was completed in time for the Panthers' game with Pike.



Mr. J. O. Birr, attending the first "Back To School" night for parents, isn't sure that science would be his interest if he were a high school pupil again. There's something suspicious about all that smoke that Mr. Robert Watson is producing.

takes second year changes in his stride

Seniors relived their childhood days at the Christmas Party. Terry Martin directs the class members in a variation of musical chairs. This was just one of the many "kiddy" games that the boys and girls played.

Child Development pupils love to work with the kindergarteners who are housed in A wing. Sara King and Janice Bannon stage a tea party for Melinda Moore, Cheryl Hollman, and Jim Culp who "phones" to invite another guest.

After a year of waiting, the Home Economics apartment was finally furnished. Most Centraliters are home by four o'clock

Publicity about the need for scientists sparked the interest of many pupils who gave up their afternoon leisure to experiment in the labs. Diane Turley takes apart the model of a typical flower as Bernard Lynch, Linda Brown, and Jan Humston watch the demonstration.

Seldom seen, but vitally necessary to any stage production or assembly are the people who set the stage, press the proper buttons, and pull the right cords to make every performance move smoothly. Dale Sering and Judy Lybrook work late to prepare for the next day's performance.

but many stay to work on special projects

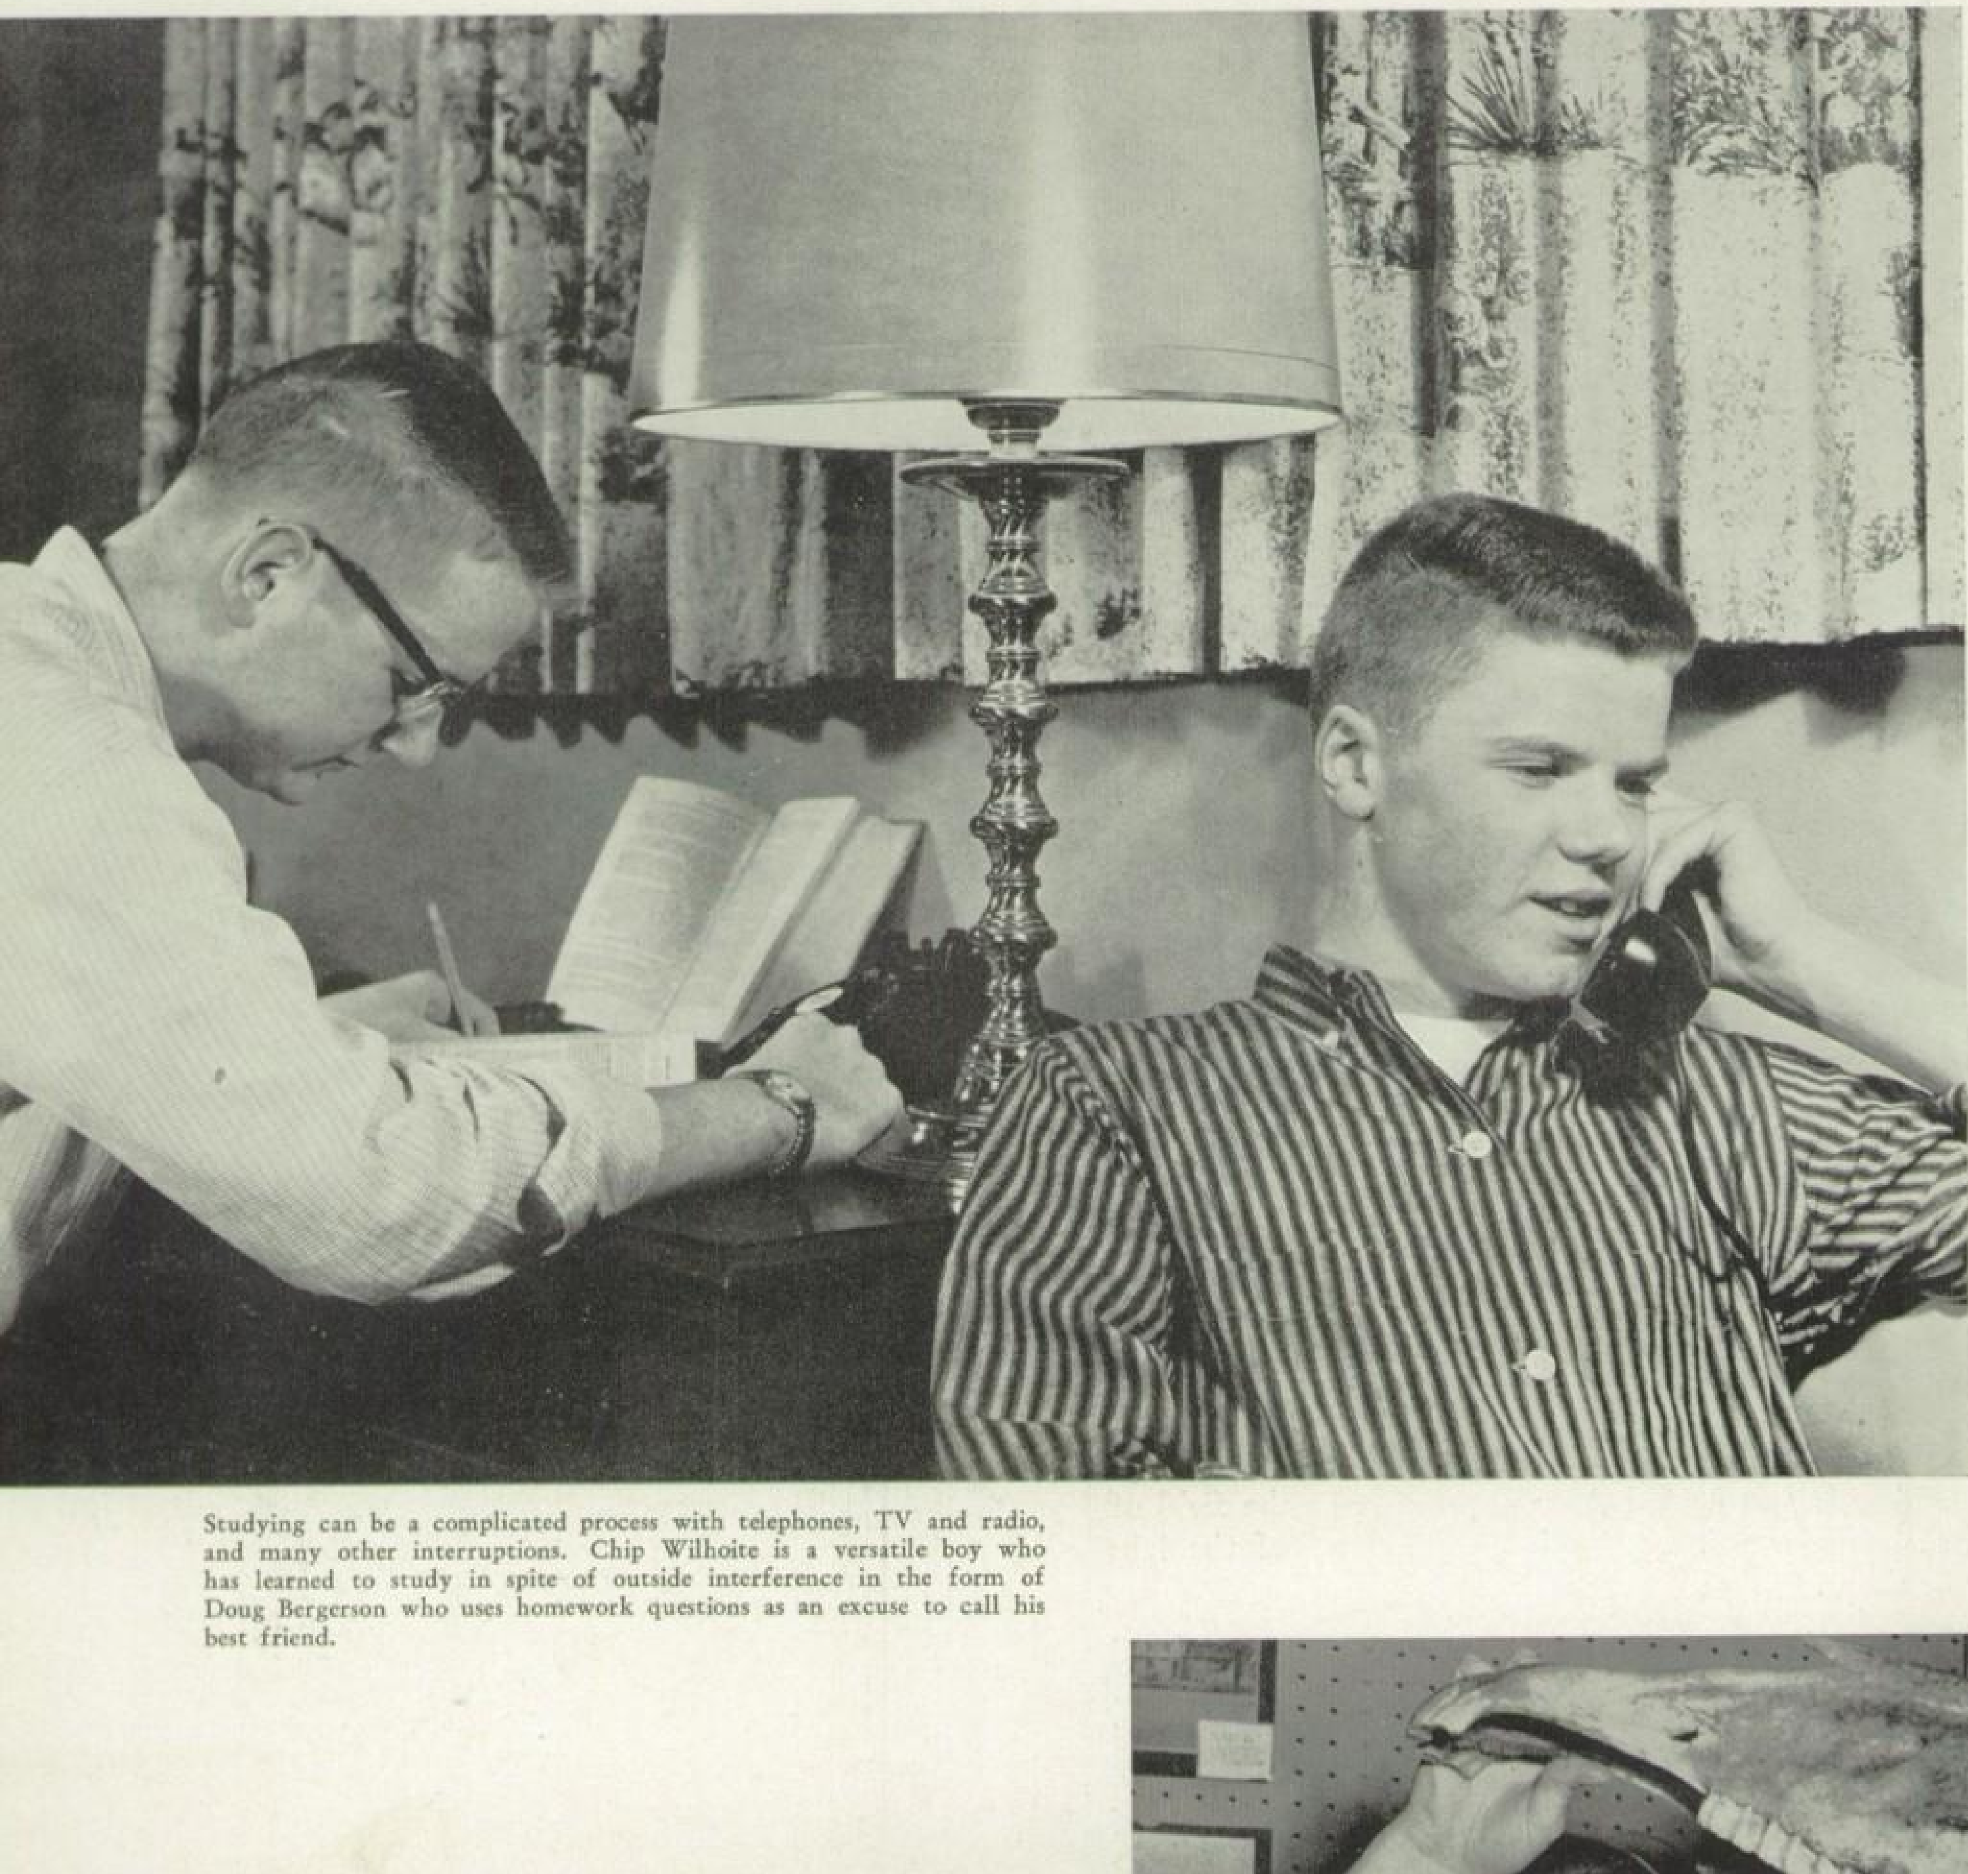
A North Centralite seems to have endless vitality. When the three-thirty bell rings each day, some of them gather their books and dash for busses. But others voluntarily stay to work on projects, to get extra help from teachers, or just to have a good time.

Not content with six periods of schoolwork, several groups met after classes this year to study for the verbal and math sections of the College Board examinations. Programs were scheduled for students entering the Indiana Achievement contests. Boys and girls also gained extra experience in the field of their major subjects by helping in one of the labs or shops.

All after-school activities cannot be considered "work." Many North Centralites pursued their hobbies of art or carpentry by painting scenery and building sets for stage shows. Musical productions, plays, and the annual Spectacular required hours of practice. Sports, too, took time. More than 150 boys stayed long hours each night for workouts.

In the spring, golf bags become a familiar sight in the halls as boys on the team go directly from school to a nearby course to practice as long as possible before it gets dark. Four regulars in the sport are Bill Johnson, Dave Epperson, Bill Land, and Jim Danby.

At home, life is filled with activities



Studying can be a complicated process with telephones, TV and radio, and many other interruptions. Chip Wilhoite is a versatile boy who has learned to study in spite of outside interference in the form of Doug Bergerson who uses homework questions as an excuse to call his best friend.

A North Centralite is a well-rounded person who mixes studies, fun, and hobbies into his busy life. Some have strange interests. Vicky Cole loves to collect fossils and bones from prehistoric animals.

that he pursues with boundless energy

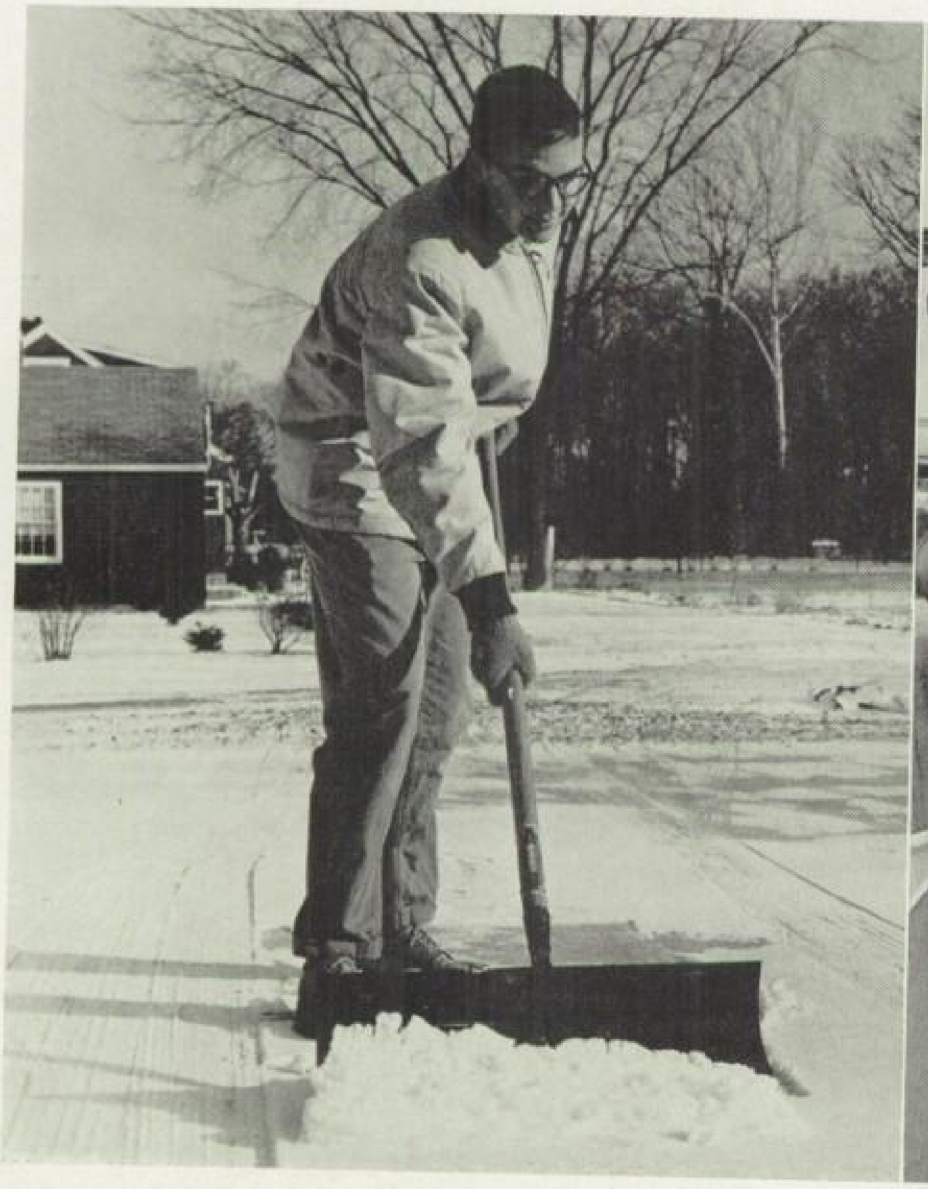
North Centralites never lack for something to do even when the strenuous school day is over. Usually algebra, English, history, or some other assignment furnishes work for afternoon and evening hours, but occasionally there are no lessons. That means leisure time to read a good book, to work on a hobby, or to sit and watch television.

Household chores claim their fair share of time. Girls are called upon to help with the cleaning, dish washing, and the care of younger children. Boys confine their efforts to yard-work, odd jobs, and keeping the family car in top-notch condition.

Dates, as always, are important. Even in the busiest of schedules, there is time for a coke date, a show, or an occasional dance. In other words, North Centralites lead a life typical of teen-agers the country over.

Being a good baby-sitter is a profitable job for teenagers in search of extra money. Linda Peak has her small charge, Lanny Hooker, spellbound as she reads the comic strip to him.

Having a strong boy around the house is a boon to parents. Bob Galm shovels snow from the family walks. This was a year that kept him busy for the winter was unusually severe.



Dates sometimes seem more important than any other activity in a North Centralite's life. Linda Hale adores the courteous treatment Butch Rogers gives her when he opens his car door for her.

VIP's and pretty girls are guests of the ROTC at their annual ball.

A North Centralite . . . concentrates

Bill Baker

North Centralites spend most of their waking hours at school, but not all of that time is concentrated on the three R's. Frequent social events relieve what otherwise might become monotony.

After football and basketball games many school organizations took turns sponsoring mixers. Popular disc jockeys sometimes provided the music, but on other nights members of A-V T spun the records. Occasionally there were parties and dances for the whole school or for a single class.

Banquets were often given to honor pupils who had earned recognition in various fields of endeavor. Each season, athletes who received their letters were given awards at a special dinner.

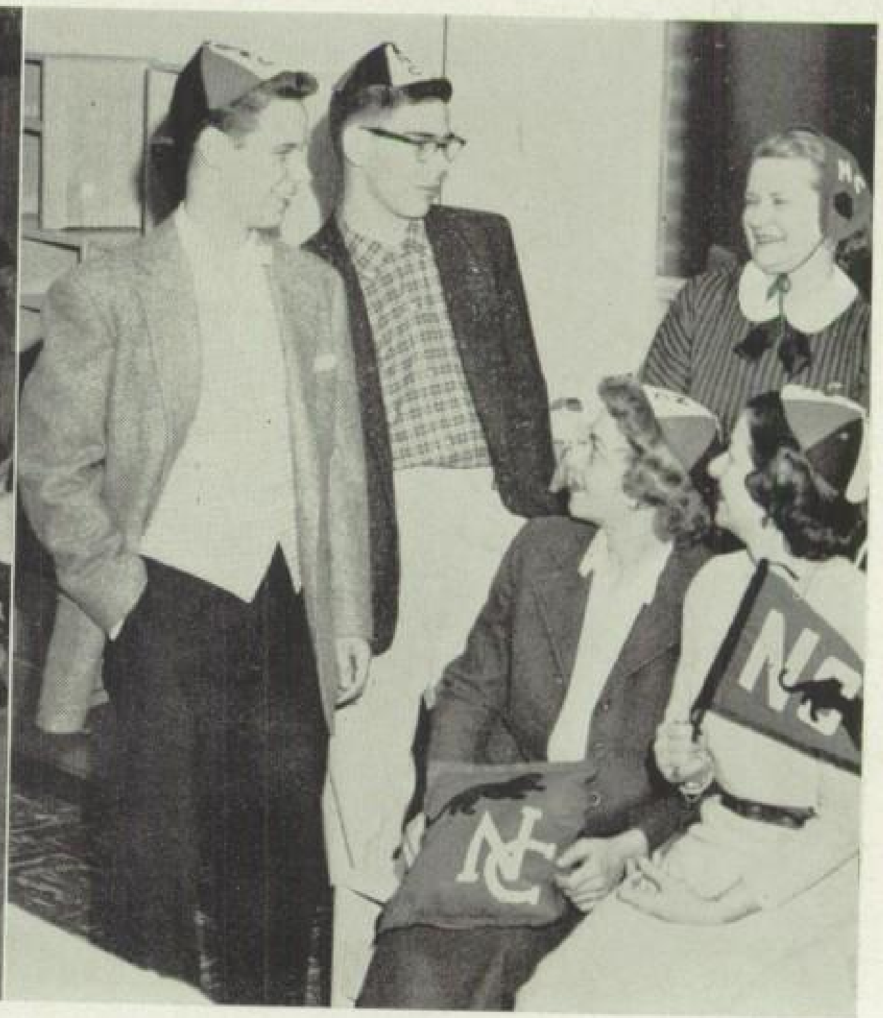
The operetta, all school play, and Junior Spectacular also gave pupils a chance to get together for an evening of fun and relaxation.

Student mixers are an important after-game activity. While boys and girls listened to Bill Baker spin records, or danced with each other, parents attended their own party in the cafeteria. Mrs. Robert Lankford serves refreshments to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kiger and Paul E. Merriman.

Girls in the block section added color and noise to tournament and home basketball games.

his life and activities around his school

This year for the first time, the Triangle Club gave what they planned would become an annual affair, the Family Jamboree. Booths for selling various articles, and for games, were set up throughout the student center and lower B wing. The evening proved highly successful from a financial point of view. (Left) A group of square dancers was one of the acts featured in the variety show given during the evening. (right) Mike Ewing and Harry Buddenbaum model North Central beanies, sold at one of the booths, for Mrs. Donald Lund and two other members of the Triangle Club who also display colorful articles bearing school insignia.



He enjoys going to parties and dances

In many cases electing royalty to preside over various functions can be as much fun as the event itself. On three separate occasions North Central pupils got together to select a queen by popular vote.

Members of the Latin classes chose Betty Lankford to rule over the 1957 Floralia, a program to welcome spring. The football and cross country teams named Barbara Hammer as queen of the Fall Sports Dance sponsored by the Student Council. Jody Ditzenberger was selected by ROTC boys to reign over their second annual Military Ball.

Guests at North Central's first Junior Prom, June 7, 1957, circled the huge shiny floor at the Indiana Roof, dancing to the music of Earl Newport and his orchestra. Intermission entertainment was provided by the Five Stars, a popular local singing group.

The most important event of the evening was the crowning of Adra Heider and Jim Peterson as queen and king respectively. Acting president Marcia Maher announced the names of the winning pair.

Chairmen Tom Green, Mary Lou Stark, Sam Bangs, Deanna Moser, Ann Takayoshi, Linda Brandt, and Chuck Harrison planned the dance. Their committees worked under the supervision of class sponsors Miss Gletha Mae Noffsinger and Mr. Robert Watson.

that are part of the school's traditions

To North Centralites, the annual Junior Spectacular is more important than any other single event. For months everything else takes a back seat while act chairmen write scripts, plan dances, and conduct rehearsals.

Act members, chairmen, and sponsors weren't the only ones who were busy. The co-ordinators' assistants, George Sweet and Judy Lybrook, gave the Spectacular many hours of their time. Karen Conrad, Dotty DeShano, and the Pastels provided intermission entertainment, while Gary Henschen and Tom Green worked up skits to introduce each act.

After the final performance, both acts and individuals were cited for their efforts. "Water Wonderland," "Sweet Dreams," and "Gentlemen, Be Seated" were named the best acts for March 13, 14, and 15 respectively.

"Old Salt," Tom Draper, tells sailors, Bob Doane and Frank Krahulik, about underwater life in the act, "Water Wonderland."

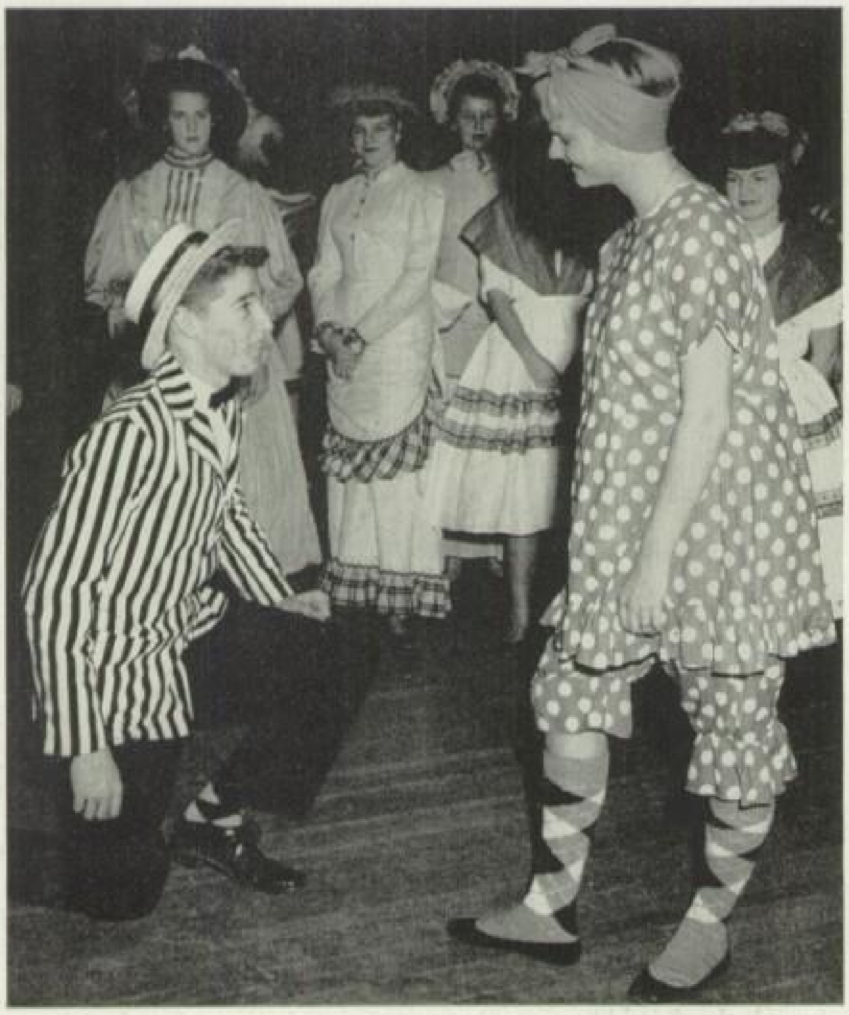
He has a chance to make public appearances



North Centralites find a number of opportunities to display their flair for dramatics. Whenever tryouts are announced for a major production such as the Junior Spectacular, operetta, or all-school play, judges are literally swamped with people trying out for parts. Even when there is a possibility that rehearsals might interfere with other fun, interest usually remains high.

Not content with "ready made" scripts, many boys and girls get together with teachers, to write and produce their own plays and skits for assemblies. Latin Club members Karen Roessler and Linda Wesseling turned playwrights for "So Long, Oo Long," while other North Centralites collaborated with faculty members, Mrs. Margaret Dunlap, Dean Evans and George Oberle for the "Marriage of Polly Panther and Vic Tory," a pep assembly skit.

Jim Wead proposes to Julie Wilson, head of the fashionable Crocker School for Girls, in the operetta, "The Prince of Pilsen." Other cast members who played important parts are Frank Shepard, Kitty Grummann, Pat Janes, Mike Clark, Karen Lemasters, Cynthia Barker, Judy Whittington, Terry Martin, Mike Engle, Corwin Reynolds, Dorothy DeShano, and Faith Farmer.

in school plays, stunts, and programs

Lead players, Mike Clark, Mike Engle, Judy Martin, and Ralph Michael, rehearse for the all-school play, "The Gramercy Ghost." Lynn Hall, Julie Wilson, Tal Johnson, Kathy Foltz, Deanna Moser, and Bonnie Hurt also appeared in the production.

Nancy Colville announces a proclamation affecting the migration of the Helvetians, to Cameron Welles, Bob Beckman, and Jim Birr. The scene is from the Latin Club's presentation, "So Long, Oo Long."

Tom Draper reads the marriage vows for "Vic Tory" and "Polly Panther," (Ed Bryan and Jim Cluley) as Randy Briggs, Jim South, and other members of the "wedding" look on.

Marcia Maher, president of the Senior Class, was named North Central's DAR good citizen by her classmates and teachers.

He is proud of the honors his school wins

Throughout the year, North Centralites won many honors. Pupils received awards for their endeavors in almost every field of competition. Because of the unusually large number who won recognition, all could not be pictured.

Bill Land, president of his Junior Achievement company and also of the local governing body for that organization, was selected to attend the JA convention at Des Moines, Iowa. There he received a second place medal in production research and a first place award in company management.

In the field of sports, Bob Beck was named to two all-county football teams. Larry Warren was county wrestling champion for his weight division.

North Central pupils also placed high in the district and state music contests. The Petticoats, a singing group, participated in a nation-wide talent contest, winning a trip to New York for the finals, just at Northerner deadline time.

Bob Hendrickson receives an award as the best platoon leader during the First Federal Inspection ceremony of NDCC.

He is proud of the boys and girls who win

Judie Mitchell, Joe Wood, Judy Lybrook, Larry Coffey, Marianne Plzak, Jimm Light, Dale Sering, Mary Lou Stark, Tim Steele, Janet Graves, Gail Eaton, and Brad Waltman received the 1957 Triangle Club awards for the most outstanding boys and girls in each class.

North Centralites who demonstrate special abilities reap interesting rewards.

Each spring the Triangle Club names two boys and two girls from each class as the most outstanding students. Judie Mitchell and Larry Coffey, who had been so-named as juniors, were further honored when they were selected by the Northside Lions' Club again to receive recognition as the most outstanding students with selection based on scholarship and achievement.

Other North Central pupils received top honors. In a geometry and advanced algebra contest with West Lafayette High School, Eric Norman and Joe Wood earned first place. Second place recognition went to Janet Graves, Mike Lewin, and Pete Egbert. Third place winners were Terry Cuthbertson, Marianne Plzak, Tim Steele, and Ken Porter.

Pupils, selected primarily for good citizenship, are invited to attend the Boys' and Girls' State sessions at Indiana University each year where they learn more about their government.

North Centralites received high scores in all divisions of the Indiana Achievement contest. On the regional test, top marks from the school went to Bob Geoffrion, Latin 2; Jeff Barnett, comprehensive mathematics "B"; Judie Mitchell, English; Gretchen Erickson, Spanish 2; Pat Rountree, Spanish 1; Mike Lewin, comprehensive mathematics "A"; and Steve Hall, geometry "A". Absent for the picture were Eric Norman, geometry "B", and Joe Wood, comprehensive mathematics "C".

Kurt Henschen, Nancy House, Sam Bangs, Walt Lowe, Nancy Turner, and Joanne Johnson gather around the rostrum to congratulate each other.

Each spring a group of juniors are selected to attend Girls' State and Boys' State. Girls who will attend the session at Indiana University are (front) Nancy Young and Barbara Lofquist. Boys representing North Central will be (second) Dave Maxwell, Tim Steele, Joe Wood, and Tom Chase, and alternates (back) Bob Martz, Steve Jay, Dave Newkirk, and Chip Wilhoite.

A North Centralite . . . likes

North Centralites are proud of their community. By working on school sponsored projects and assisting civic organizations, they do their share to help others.

Special interests are sometimes translated into group activity. Those who enjoy dramatics often work behind the scenes at a summer theater, while a luckier few appear out front on the stage. A group of the more studious ones attend monthly meetings at Central Library to learn about foreign nations.

Gaining experience in the business world is important to teen-agers. Many boys and girls hold jobs or participate in the Junior Achievement program.

The church plays an important part in the lives of most young people. There they gather for fellowship as well as worship. Some of them sing in a choir, teach Sunday School, or contribute time doing odd jobs around the church. Many others are active in their church's youth program or in some other similar religious organization.

Karen Kiger, Bonnie McLaughlin, and Jimm Light are typical of the many North Centralites who consider Sunday morning church going a "must." Many denominations are building in Washington Township.

Jody Ditzenberger gets practical business training from her part-time job in a bakery.

Ann Deckelbaum, Ginger Polay, and Margie Bitner help Mary Keller, from St. Mary of the Woods, paint scenery at Avondale Playhouse.

Many Centralites are scout minded. Chuck Lugar learns about European customs from Bill Buehler who attended the International Boy Scout Jamboree.

The "Petticoats," Linda Hirt, Karen LeMasters, and Julie Wilson, appear on many community programs.

In the latter part of the 1956-57 school year, twenty-five juniors were elected to the National Honor Society on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership, and service. During an all-school program, these boys and girls were initiated in an impressive ceremony conducted by the Ben Davis High School chapter.

A dinner for the members, their parents, faculty committee members, the sponsor of the organization, Mrs. Mildred Shirley, and the senior sponsors, Miss Gletha Noffsinger and Mr. Robert Watson was held in February. At this time members were presented with their Honor Society pins or necklaces.

Officers of the club include Larry Warren, president, Marilyn Wilmore, vice-president, Shirley Barnett, secretary, and Tal Johnson, treasurer.

In the spring of 1958, the names of new members, five per cent of whom were from the senior class and ten per cent from this year's junior class, were disclosed during an assembly program. Even the new members had been kept in the dark up until that time.

Student Council members, happy over the honor of having their school chosen to serve as hosts to the state convention next year, re-elected Jim Blythe as president and started him on a busy schedule of directing preparations for the big event.

One section of the organization, the Safety Council, increased its activity this year by conducting a car check every morning, turning aside those drivers who were without permits. Also, they provided a gallery display of gruesome wreck pictures that had everyone driving with unusual care for a while. Safety assemblies were held for all students who were interested.

Other projects sponsored by the council were the sports and Christmas Fantasy dances, and the cafeteria clean-up campaign.

Marilyn Wilmore, vice-president, Karen Roessler, secretary, Dave Maxwell, associate secretary, and John Shreve, treasurer, helped Jim to get the Student Council off to a democratic start in their second year of operation.

Mr. Smith looks on as Mr. Thomas Sterling, Executive Secretary of Student Councils of Indiana, congratulates Jim Blythe and Marilyn Wilmore after they were formally installed into the Student Council.

Athletes backed by peppy booster groups

Although players may not consciously hear the roar of the cheering sections at games, they are unconsciously affected by the fervor of the booster section and feel let down when the noise dies out.

North Central's Panthers received ample encouragement from Booster Club members who sat together at all games. A special group, consisting of members of the block section, are girls who hold season book tickets and attend all home games. All other members of the Booster Club sit around this section and give their heartiest support.

Block section members added color to the North Central-occupied bleachers during the basketball sectionals. A checkerboard effect was achieved by the girls who wore bibs of red, black, or white. Derbies and shakers added the extra "touch."

Officers of the Booster Club are Tom Draper, president, Cathie Duck, vice-president, Diane Turley, secretary, and Caroline Petty, treasurer. Mrs. Margaret Dunlap is the sponsor.

Another part of the Booster Club, the Pep Band, made music that could be heard even above the din of shrieking fans. The members tootled and banged happily all during the games, illustrating the reason basketball is called "Hoosier Hysteria."

The Pep Band, under the direction of Mr. Robert Schlatter, is composed of several of the regular band members who organized for this special purpose.

A game without its Booster Club is like a movie without background music. North Central's block section, which is one unit of the Booster Club, gives the teams their ardent support.

Above the din of the cheering spectators and the cries of the umpires, music can be clearly heard. North Central's Pep Band is doing its bit to encourage the athletes.

Senior girls organize to give school aid

The Planning Board outlines all of the activities for the Senior Girls' Service Club. The board consists of (left to right) Adra Heider, Marilyn Wilmore, Lynn Signorino, Judy Whitacre, Joyce Van Meter, Kay Browning, Janet Sunderland, and Marcia Maher.

In the fall of 1957, eight girls met with Miss Geraldine Bagby to organize a Senior Girls' Service Club. All senior girls were eligible for membership.

The purpose of the club is to give service to the school in any way it can. The first project was to make new students feel at home by inviting them to get acquainted during lunch with a few of the girls and faculty members. Other members acted as a welcoming committee for the North Central evaluating committee and visiting principals from all over the United States.

A Mother-Daughter tea was held at Christmas for senior girls, their mothers, and women faculty members. Senior colors, gold and white, were used in the decorations.

The Panhellenic tea held in February at Butler University gave the girls an opportunity of meeting sorority women and hearing about organization life. A tour of the sorority houses on the campus ended the program.

Ann Grosskopf, as chairman of the refreshment committee, serves her mother, Mrs. Virginia Grosskopf, and Priscilla Jackson and her mother, Mrs. Susan Jackson, at the Mother-Daughter tea.

France made real for members of club

French Club members have been actively engaged in developing a constitution this year and also in preparing a number of interesting programs. All persons taking French are eligible for membership.

In order to obtain a better knowledge of French habits and customs, and to become more familiar with the language, each member corresponded with pen pals in French speaking countries.

Just before the Christmas holidays, members of Les Amis de France strolled through the halls of North Central singing Christmas carols in French.

Scenic movies and a speaker, Mrs. R. W. Franz, were arranged for other club programs.

Officers are Susan Cooling, president, Linda Hale, vice-president, Carol Shuttleworth, treasurer, and Bonnie Barr, secretary.

Mrs. Alice Kraft is the sponsor.

Scenes of France present a backdrop for a skit presented by Janet Sunderland and Cari Campbell for all the members of the French Club.

Latin Club celebrates ancient Roman customs

Latin Club is one of the largest and most active of all groups at North Central since all Latin students are eligible for membership.

Initiation for Latin Club members was given in typical Roman style. New members were conducted on A Trip Through Hades by the members of the previous year.

One of the high-lights of the year was the slave sale in March at which time eighteen volunteer "slaves" were auctioned off to other members of the club. For the following two weeks, the "slaves" served their masters during their free moments each school day.

The Floralia in May is the club's important program of the year. It is at this time that the Queen of May is chosen by members and crowned during an auditorium program where she and her court rule over an original play written by the members.

The 1957 playlet was presented last fall before the Latin teachers of the State Teachers' Association.

Officers of the club are Larry Coffey, consul, Karen Roessler, proconsul, Jim Birr, quaester, and Susan Duck, scribe.

Sponsors of the group are Miss Cleo Kinnison, and Miss Ruth Lesley.

Spanish Club gets acquainted with Spain

Sondra Moon, Mike Klezmer, and Katie Kohlstaedt get in the mood for a Spanish dinner to be celebrated by Spanish Club members who will eat typical food.

A more personal acquaintance with Spain and its customs is the objective of the Spanish Club. A test of the members' command of the language came when the consul to Guatemala, Dr. J. G. Evan, was a guest speaker at one of the meetings. His talk was in Spanish.

During the holiday season, members prepared a Christmas basket of canned goods for needy families and presented it to the Salvation Army.

A dinner, held in the Home Ec dining room and prepared by twenty members, was another interesting project. Guests were served a Spanish menu, consisting of enchaladas, salad, and chicken with rice.

At another meeting slides of Mexico were shown. During Christmas, carols were learned in Spanish.

Officers of the club are Nancy Turner, president, Jo Mekel, secretary-treasurer, and Linda Haislup, historian. Mr. William Bugher is the sponsor.

Persons interested in art found an outlet for their creative ability in the Art Club. Members worked on projects of their own and also assisted the school by helping paint scenery for the Family Jamboree which was held December 7.

Three persons made an excellent showing in the art exhibit at L. S. Ayres. Ann Takayoshi received an award for her scholarship portfolio plus a gold key, while Judy Horst and Sandra Heisterkamp both received merit recognition for their exhibits.

Field trips to Indianapolis Engraving Company and to the scholastic art exhibit during the year gave members a better idea of commercial art.

Officers of the Art Club are Lynn Hall, president, Barbara Freeland, vice-president, and Becky Teague, secretary. Mrs. Zelda Zoe Cassady is the sponsor.

Art Club members, Sandra Heisterkamp, Becky Teague, and Marean Weaver (seated) put their talents to practical use by designing and painting stage sets for school productions.

For those interested in learning more about the theater and in participating in the various phases of work required to produce a successful play, there is the Drama Club.

The Drama Club sponsors one play during the year, given in the spring, which is open to all students for try-outs. Members of the club may also try out for parts in the play, although the majority of them serve on committees responsible for make-up, costumes, programs, publicity and tickets.

Officers are Connie Zimet, president, Bobbie Mathers, vice-president, Judy Kinnear, secretary, Pat Janes, treasurer, and Jan Humston, temporary historian. The spring play is sponsored by Mr. Hollace Arment.

Amateur flyers join Aeronautics Club

Ken Porter, secretary of the Aeronautics Club, describes one of the mechanical parts of a model airplane to Mike Gilliom.

A training program with films obtained from the Air Force ROTC unit from Butler University is included in the activities of the Aeronautics Club.

Members of the club are searching for war surplus materials, especially the faces of instruments, in order to extend their training program.

Field trips to Purdue University and the Weir Cook Airport were planned as part of the year's activities.

Meetings were devoted to the training program, films, and discussions of theories and principles of aerodynamics. Model aircraft were used in the discussions.

Quiz-'Em team achieves all-time record

Jerry Miller, Judie Mitchell, Grace Wilson, and George Quigley spent many hours studying newspapers in order to prepare for meets with other schools.

Two members of last year's team were unhappy when North Central decided not to enter the Quiz-'Em contest this year. They petitioned successfully for the privilege of representing their school in the Indianapolis Star-sponsored competition. After a week of intensive cramming, the team gave an amazing performance in their meet with Broad Ripple, ending with a tie score of 3000 points each, which made it necessary to base the winning decision on the amount of time taken to answer the questions.

At the end of the first round, North Central had answered all of the 32 questions—a feat never before accomplished in the seven season existence of Quiz-'Em on the Air. Broad Ripple acquired only 2200 points in the first round; thus, having to go into a second round. North Central was declared winner by a fifteen second margin, answering the questions in 60 seconds. Broad Ripple answered theirs in 75.

Although the team lost in the second meet, their first victory established them as real "quiz kids."

Getting into an argument or discussion is an ordinary every day occurrence in life, but learning to do it artfully is one of the purposes of the Debate Club. Membership is open to anyone interested and the topics discussed are those chosen by the group.

Each meeting is devoted to a debate or discussion given by different teams. Amending the club constitution was one of the projects of the group. At the end of the year, an evaluation of the club is given by the members.

Officers are Judie Mitchell, president, Phil Bredell, vice-president, Craig Pinkus, parliamentarian, and Pat Rountree, secretary. Mrs. Marion Dryden is sponsor of Debate.

Visual aids made possible by AVT members

Melvin Dawson, John Jerman (seated) and Dean Wert experiment with a Wellensak tape recorder.

Audio-visual education plays an important part in class procedures at North Central. A group of boys and girls who are trained to operate movie and slide projectors and set up the audio equipment for assembly programs, organized a club and called it the AVT (Audio-Visual Technicians). Members also serve as disc jockeys on the public address system.

In a room off the library, AVT people make schedules for use of the equipment and see that the machines are in good condition.

A standing committee for amendments, and one for membership, was set up this year.

Activities during the year included visits to TV studios, audio-visual demonstrations, and the purchase of tools for audio-visual use.

Officers of the club are Kurt Henschen, president, Mark Huesing, vice-president, Dotty DeShano, treasurer and scribe, and Mr. Frank Rhea, club sponsor.

Science projects interest Electronics Club

For those students interested in working with modern scientific equipment, the Electronics Club filled the bill. The club has sixteen members, who meet every Thursday.

During each meeting a demonstration of electronic equipment is given by different members. Some examples of these are High Fidelity sound reproduction, Tesla coils, Supersonic sound amplification, Van de Graff Generators, and amplifiers belonging to the members.

Many of the members are working on projects in their own work shops.

Boyce Rensberger is president and Mr. Keith Mohr is the sponsor of the group.

Ricky Hibbs, Jim Davidson, and Alan Shimer explain the operations of the electronics equipment to the members of the club at one of the meetings.

Hi-Y has service to school as its goal

Giving the invocation before auditorium programs is one of the duties of the chaplain of the Hi-Y. Dale Sering leads the student body in a prayer.

Hi-Y, a youth organization affiliated with the Young Men's Christian Association, has been one of the most active clubs in North Central. The group meets twice a month.

Projects included sponsorship of a mixer following the basketball game with Frankfort, a motion picture, "Silent Witness" shown during home room and open to all students, and a Tri-Hi-Y breakfast on Palm Sunday.

Besides the mixer, the club had another money-making activity, a car wash at a local gas station. Proceeds will be used in providing a gift to the school.

Officers are Dick True, president, Jim Leffel, vice-president, Bob Loser, secretary, Chuck Johnson, treasurer, and Tom Stelhorn, sergeant-at-arms. Mr. John Wendling is sponsor.

Future housewives train in Home Ec Club

Home Ec Club is a new organization that is just beginning to get underway this year. Already its members have visible evidence of their home-making abilities for they made the curtains in the library.

At Easter, 25 under-privileged children at Fletcher Place were entertained by Home Ec Club members, who financed the party and arranged the games.

This organization has the distinction of having the most attractive meeting room in the building—the beautiful newly furnished apartment in the Home Economics Department.

Linda Haislup is president, Carol Harvey, vice-president, and Becky Greenwood, secretary-treasurer. Miss Carolyn Kleifgen is their sponsor.

Members of the Home Ec Club designed and fashioned the draperies in the library. Linda Haislup, at the sewing machine, and Becky Greenwood found hemming to be simpler after the drapes were hung.

Model Railroaders start lifetime hobby

That adult men love to play with model railroads is a well-known fact, so North Centralites who joined the Model Railroading Club are starting a hobby that will serve as relaxation and leisure time fun for a long time.

Each member who owned a railroad set-up was able to display his layout to the others who made inspection visits one of their projects. Talks on various phases of railroading during club meetings, gave members an insight into the American transportation picture. A field trip to a railroad yard was scheduled also.

Mr. William Bugher is the sponsor. Tim Stapleton was elected president and Jan Boch secretary-treasurer.

Trading or bartering was a means of exchange in earlier times. Later on it became just a pastime, one which is the basis for Stamp and Coin Clubs' interest. Members enjoy exchanging, trading, and selling stamps and coins.

Several of them possess unusual and interesting collections from different countries. Grayce Wilson has a specimen of the United Nations air letter sheet, one of the few in existence. She also has all of the UN stamps ever issued. Denny Hilgenberg has a large collection of United States coins and stamps; Jim Adams also has US coins of all kinds in addition to world stamps and US plate blocks.

Doug Johnson possesses a general stamp collection, which is a collection of issues from all the countries, rather than a specialized collection of one certain type. John Campbell also has a collection of plate blocks and a general one of specialized British colonies.

Miss Ruth Lesley, sponsor of the group, has plate blocks on almost all of the US stamps since 1938.

Steve Coons, president of the Stamp and Coin Club, discusses the possibility of swapping a few stamps with Bob Mitchell.

Career planning was one of the main projects of the F.B.L.A. this year. Speakers were brought in to talk on the techniques to apply when looking for a job. A field trip to Shell Oil and the Bell Telephone Company familiarized the club members with office procedures and showed them the various types of machines used.

At Christmas time, each person brought a ten cent gift for a grab bag at a club party. Entertainment was provided by students.

Several members attended the State Convention at Muncie in March, 1957, where Adra Heider was elected State Reporter.

Keeping the bulletin board at the entrance of B-wing supplied with interesting articles on business was a club project.

To earn money, F.B.L.A. ran the coat check during the home basketball games.

Officers of the club are Larry Coffey, president, Adra Heider, vice-president, Joyce Van Meter, secretary, Jim Hedback, treasurer, and Gretchen Schafer, reporter. Mrs. Edith Reese is the sponsor.

North Central's Future Nurses of America Club had the distinction of being the only county school represented in the all-city conference at Tech High School in February.

The purpose of the Future Nurses organization is to promote interest in the nursing field for those girls who have chosen this as their career. Programs during the school year were planned so that the girls could learn more about the nursing profession. Several nurses came to speak to the group, one of which was the Director of the Red Cross. There were also films on nursing.

A tour of Riley Hospital gave the group a chance to observe the procedures and methods of nursing. Selling TB pins to the student body as a service was a logical project for the group.

Officers of the club are Marilyn Wilmore, president, Cobina Ferracane, vice-president, Judy Lybrook, secretary-treasurer, and Deanna Moser, corresponding secretary. Miss Mary Doyle is the sponsor of the club.

Future Teachers group boosts profession

F.T.A. installed its first group of officers and initiated thirty charter members last spring in a candlelight service on the Student Center mezzanine.

North Central is doing its part toward relieving the teacher shortage. Approximately sixty girls belong to the local chapter of the Future Teachers of America, and enthusiastically take part in field trips to various grade schools.

Members gained a better understanding of Japanese schools when Mr. Tamotsu Fujiwara, a Japanese Fullbright teacher visiting North Central, spoke to them of his native land. Films on teaching were shown at meeting time also.

Some of the senior F.T.A. members enrolled in cadet teaching in the second semester. They were sent to grade schools to assist the regular teacher in any way she wished to use them, and to observe methods of teaching. Later these girls discussed their experiences during club meeting.

Mrs. Edith Reese is the sponsor, Nancy McDowell, president, Brenda Moffett, vice-president, Carolynn Ross, secretary, Sondra Moon, treasurer, and Cynthia Keeney, historian.

Archery Club learns ancient hunting art

Individually made arrows with the club crest on them might be called the "fraternity pins" of Archery Club members. One of their projects is to make their own "ammunition."

Although a permanent range has not yet been set up at North Central, members used a portable target for outdoor practices after school in the warmer months.

Included in club activities were talks on phases of archery. One of these speakers, Mr. Harold Beck, past president of the State Target Archery Association, described the various types of bows and gave a demonstration of techniques to be used and the forms necessary for a good archer.

Officers of the club are Dick Hayworth, president, Judy Farmer, vice-president, Steve Blair, secretary, Cliff Fiscus, treasurer, and Mike Klezmer and Neill Fields, field masters. Mr. Robert LeMaster is sponsor of the group.

Joe Klobucar, Jim Glore, Dick Hayworth, and Mike Klezner, junior William Tells, line up for the ancient sport of archery.

Stage crew important to program successes

All the lighting for school performances is supervised by Mary Hawes, while the actual operation is conducted by Dale Sering.

When the curtain goes up on a dramatic production, or when the student body files into the theater for an assembly, one group of people have already finished part of their work and are waiting behind the scenes to see that everything moves smoothly.

The stage crew takes charge of all props needed for any production. They also work the intricate switchboard that controls the house and stage lights, and manipulate the two spot lights for all programs.

Scenery may be designed by the Art Department or the organization producing a play, but painting and construction of it is a job reserved for stage crew members. They built the sets for the Operetta, Junior Spectacular, and the Spring Play.

Club meetings are usually taken up with discussions about the props to be assembled for a program. As a rule, the club assembles after school since there is more time then to work on scenery, lighting, and other problems.

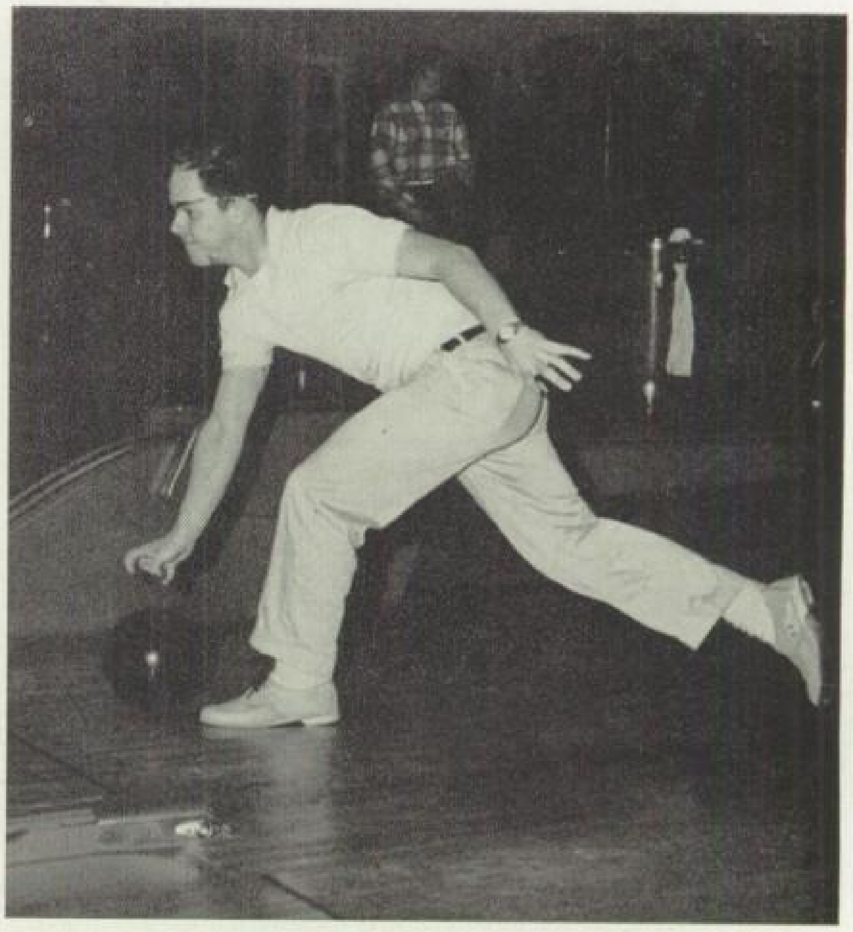
Judy Lybrook is chairman of the group and Bobbi Mathers is her assistant. Mrs. Betty Randall was the first semester's sponsor. When she resigned at mid-semester, Mr. Thomas Fisher took over.

One of the most popular Indianapolis sports for both adults and teenagers is bowling. This means that a Bowling Club at North Central is a "must." Sixty-eight boys and girls joined, choosing Mr. H. F. Freeland and Mr. Henry Harrison as sponsors.

These members were divided into seventeen different teams which bowled in shifts on Tuesday and Wednesday at the Broad Ripple Bowling Alley. They bowled a twenty-week season, and an eight-week tournament was held to determine the individual champions who were Bill Land and Marilyn Knoebel, without handicaps, and Chuck Fishman and Jean Ditzenberger, with handicaps. Each winner received a medal to keep and his name was engraved on a trophy.

Each member belongs to the Junior ABC and received a Junior ABC bowling card. A bowling team of five girls and five boys was sent to the ABC tournament.

The club is run strictly as a bowling league, with Shirley Rider the league secretary.



High school bowlers used the Broad Ripple alleys for practice sessions. John Triller gets in championship form to make a strike.

Target skill, aim of Rifle Club members

The Rifle Club had difficulty in getting started this year. They wanted to find a range where they might increase their skill, but nothing seemed to be available. Therefore, club members spent their monthly meeting time perfecting a constitution and discussing the various parts of the rifle.

One requirement for membership in the Rifle Club was that members had to own their own rifles.

Although membership in this type of organization is usually restricted to boys, one girl was brave enough to join.

Army service to be easier for NDCC boys

Four classes of the National Defense Cadet Corps (NDCC), with three student instructors each, will find army life easier since they are learning to give and take orders, to care for weapons, and how to treat men under their control.

Federal Inspection, scheduled for May, serves as a "report card" of progress, since an army officer inspection crew rates the NDCC.

The familiar sound of "Hut, two, three, four!" is a frequent background accompaniment to classes as student instructors march drill teams outside on the lawn. Boys, flat on the floor at the end of B wing practice "sighting," and disciplinary cases jogtrot around the front circle drive carrying heavy rifles.

On the purely social side, NDCC members hold a Military Ball yearly, inviting army officials and special guests. This year's queen, Jody Ditzenberger, reigned in a Mount Vernon setting.

Quill and Scroll installed for Journalists

Newly elected officers Judy Horst, secretary, and Tom Green, president, (standing) plan a program for the next meeting with Lynn Signorino, vice-president, and Judie Mitchell, treasurer (seated).

Gretchen Wolfram, vice-president of the Quill and Scroll chapter of Broad Ripple, presents Ann Takayoshi with her pin as Marilyn Wilmore waits for hers. Jim Sims, president of the Broad Ripple chapter, gives Lorraine Brooks and Janet Sunderland red carnations as extra souvenirs.

After a year and a half of anxious waiting for people to qualify, a chapter of the international journalism honorary of Quill and Scroll was formed at North Central and the installation took place February 7 during two school assemblies, one for sophomores, the other for upper classmen. Evaluators from the North Central Educational Association were in the audience.

Gretchen Wolfram and Jim Sims, vice-president and president, respectively, of the Broad Ripple chapter, helped Mrs. Kathleen Keilman install the group.

Twenty-five members qualified by being in the upper third of their class, and giving at least one year of outstanding service on either the Northerner staff or on the Northern Lights staff.

Members must be approved by a four member advisory board consisting of Mrs. Keilman, Mr. Dean B. Smith, principal, Mr. Callison Simon, vice-principal, and Mr. John Shirley. Also they must be passed by the national headquarters.

News Bureau gets double pay for publicity

News Bureau members are doubly blessed. Besides earning a class credit, they are paid for their contributions to the local newspapers.

The Teen Star's new policy of seeing that each of the schools is represented weekly, cuts down the volume of feature stories that might be published from North Central, but News Bureau members are happy with this system since one of their members is always sure of a nice check to supplement his allowance.

The Indianapolis News and Indianapolis Times publish small news items twice a week and the Times carries a large school page on Sunday.

One of the display cases on the upper mezzanine of the Student Center was taken over by the News Bureau the last semester. Published items were put on display for a week before being pasted in the scrapbook.

Kay Cooper is one of the most experienced members of the News Bureau staff. This was her second year as correspondent to the Indianapolis News and Teen Star.

Northern Lights gets on regular schedule

The Northern Lights' string of bad luck seemed to break during its second yeor, for the staff finally got on a steady bi-monthly basis.

In addition to the regular issues, several special issues were distributed—for example one for Christmas and one for the Spectacular.

Something new in the paper this year was the SWAP SHOP in which other school newspapers traded interesting stories and jokes with the Northern Lights. A battle between columnists added spice also.

Tom Green, senior, is editor of the staff for the second year. Assisting him are Gretchen Schafer, associate editor, Lynn Signorino, Kay Browning, and Jacque Kuilema, page editors, and the reporting staff consists of Kay Cooper, Chuck Harrison, Sandra Ritchey, Peggy Snyder, Nancy Stephenson, and Marcia Swan. Mike Clark, sports editor, is assisted by Bill Land and Dave Maxwell.

Mr. John Shirley is the faculty adviser, and Mr. Robert LeMaster is the printing adviser.

Lynn Signorino, Jacque Kuilema, and Kay Browning, page editors of the Northern Lights, sometimes go into the Print Shop to help set up type.

Northerner staff lives through hectic year

Only a member of the staff can really appreciate the Northerner, for only a member of the staff knows what goes into it. The work starts at Indiana University in the summer where the book is designed. It goes on for seven hectic months of planning and taking pictures, writing copy, selling books, cropping photos, and a myriad of other tasks. Frustration often sets in but problems are ironed out eventually and the big moment finally arrives when the book is delivered.

To sell a $6 book for $3.75, other projects have to be dreamed up and executed. A Mixer after the first North Central home basketball game, a sale of decorated mums for the last football game, a percentage of the money paid for underclass pictures and an autograph dance helped finances this year. For the first time, pictorial advertising was OK'd and the staff, starting late, had to work hard to sell its quota on time.

Belles and A Cappella sing for programs

Belles and A Cappella, choral groups, provide musical numbers for school programs and furnish a satisfying form of self-expression for its members.

Three major projects were undertaken by the choirs this year. An operetta, The Prince of Pilsen, had a split cast of lead characters on the two nights it was presented. Costumes were designed by members of the choirs. Scouts for the Starlight Musicals were in the audience on the final night and two persons were invited to take auditions.

A few days before Christmas vacation, the combined group caroled in the halls of the school, singing traditional Christmas Songs.

At Easter they presented a program for the entire school just before Spring Vacation. Mr. Hollace Arment is the choral director.

A special band with its own vocalist, Kitty Grummann, was organized this year to play for special events and dances. During this first season, talent was not lacking; at the last count there were seventeen members—all specialists in providing the kind of music teenagers like—everything from rock and roll to "dreamy" tunes.

The dance band will play for the "April Showers" dance, which is an annual affair at North Central.

One of the group's public appearances was with the regular band at the Winter Band Concert given in the school auditorium as a paid evening program.

Flag, baton twirlers give color to parades

Flag twirlers, Judy Stange, Nancy Turner, Judy Oliver, Maureen Beutler, and Marty Johnson, completed the marching Twirling Corps. Dick True, senior, was drum major.

Everyone loves a parade—primarily because the band adds color and music. North Central's band began the season marching out on a muddy field, wearing brand new uniforms, at the first football game of the season. From then on they made their appearance at most of the sports events throughout the year. Dick True, drum major, the majorettes, and the flag twirlers led off.

A guest appearance at the Purdue-Miami football game was made possible when the organization participated in the High School Band Day program for units from all over the state. The band also took part in the North Central NDCC federal inspection day this spring.

A five-piece string ensemble, consisting of Carol Shuttleworth, Diane Collier, Lynn Hall, Charlotte Jones, and Bill Brickson are included as part of the band. Mr. Robert Schlatter is director.

Musicians exercise talent in band, ensemble

At an awards dinner, sponsored by the Parent's Booster Club, gold pins were given members who had served eight semesters; silver pins for seven or less; and letter awards to others.

Those members who received silver pins for participating in the band or orchestra seven semesters were Mike Clark, Dave Siersdale, Tim Stapleton, Nancy Minnis and Deanna Moser. Seniors who received gold pins include Lois Anne George, Jan Hall, Tal Johnson, Linda Lierman, Tom Robb, and Dick True.

Certificates and letters were presented to members who had participated for three to six semesters.

Tal Johnson received the John Philip Sousa award for being the best all-round bandsmen.

Dick True, drum major, led the marching band out to the parade grounds for the NDCC Federal Inspection program.

Boys and girls interested in being of service gave up their study halls to work in the library, and in the guidance and main offices.

The Library Club functions as a service organization for North Central. Members donate their study periods to assist Miss Mann and Mrs. Wert. Odd jobs such as stamping dates on out-going books and returning in-bound volumes to the shelves are just two of the many aids performed by these pupils.

Those working in the guidance center and main office run errands, file cards, run the mimeograph machine, and do other jobs. Volunteers from business classes operate the switchboard.

Helping the counselors file enrollment cards and schedules of every student was a great help to busy guidance people.

in variety of office and laboratory chores

Science laboratory assistants help the chemistry, physics, and biology teachers. They assist in grading exams, keeping the lab in order, and performing experiments.

Developmental Reading Laboratory assistants help Mrs. North in the lab on the days when this course is offered to juniors and seniors who are taking English also. Student assistants keep the books and records in order, plus taking care of the reading lab equipment, checking to see that it is in working condition.

Those students working in the cafeteria stack trays, dishes, and help the serving women by keeping them supplied with food from the kitchen.

Assisting students during class is one of the jobs given to the art assistants. Those working in the Health Center keep the attendance cards in order.

While Mrs. Geneva Kennedy busies herself with keeping records, making inventories, checking to see that the rental books are in good condition and ordering supplies, several students help her by donating their free periods to sell bookstore supplies.

Typing contracts and letters occupies most of the time of girls who work in Mr. Stroup's office.

Twelve teams in eight sports compete outside the school, while a well organized intra-mural program gives other boys a chance to take part in athletics. Lively cheerleaders, an experienced coaching staff, a Letterman's Club, and enthusiastic fans made the 1957-58 sports program complete.

Varsity gridmen successful in 1957 season,

After only one year of playing together as a team, the North Central gridders began their 1957 season by overwhelming Madison Heights of Anderson 40-0 and forged ahead to end the season with a 6-3 record. Victories over Pike Township, Harry E. Wood, Frankfort, and Fort Wayne Central avenged last year's losses to these teams.

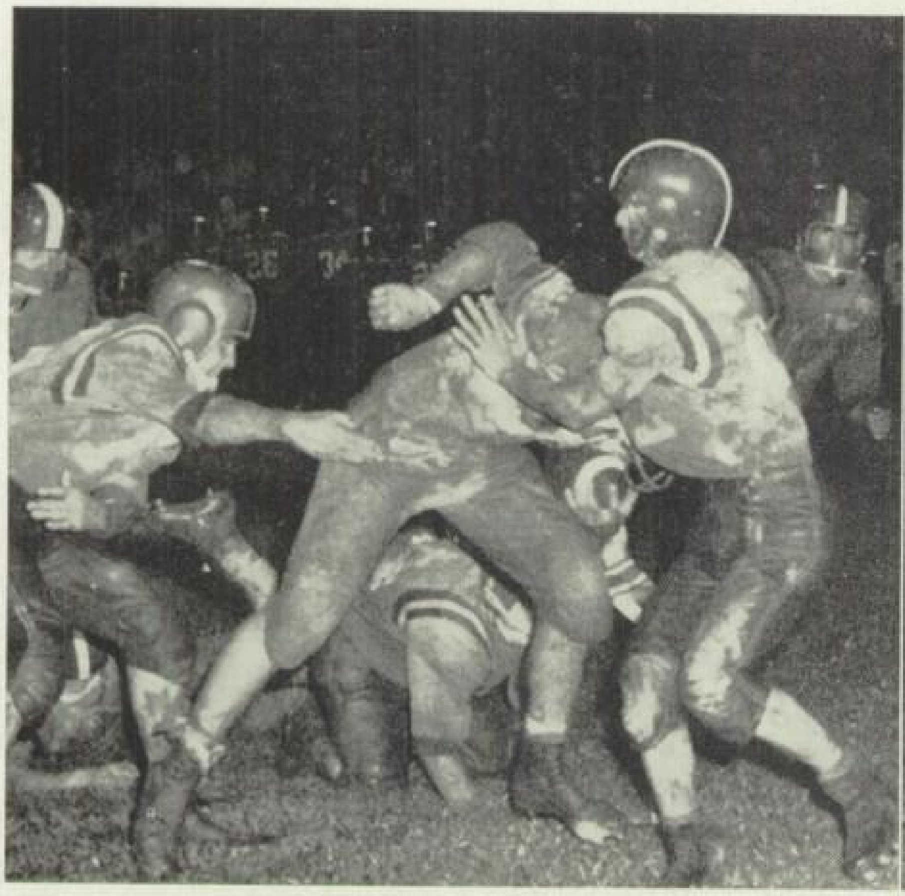
The winning combination consisted of three important factors—an excellent coaching staff, Marion County's leading scorer, and a much improved squad.

Bob Beck led the county scoring department by compiling 83 points in season play. He was named to the all-county first team, and was given honorable mention for state honors in local newspapers.

Other boys who made outstanding contributions toward putting the team in the winning column were sophomore Jim Birr, junior Bob Trent, and seniors Dick Arens, Joe Etchison, Dan Kelley, and Bob North.

Next year's team should provide plenty of action and thrill packed games, since 15 of 26 lettermen will add their experience to the contests.

On the night of the seniors' last appearance on the football field, senior players and their parents were given public recognition. Pictured are Mrs. Bertha Shelhorn, Bob Beck, Mr. Frank Shelhorn, Mrs. Helen Etchison, Mr. John Etchison, Joe Etchison, Bob Hargreaves, and Mrs. Louise Hargreaves.



A misty, foggy night set the scene for the first home football game in the new stadium. Here, Bob North rushes forward in an attempt to gain ground toward the win against Pike Township.

Bob Beck plunges around left end for another touchdown for North Central. A clear, moon-lit October night contrasted greatly with the muddy, rainy conditions of a few weeks past.

Reserve gridmen stacked up experience for varsity competition by finishing their 1957 campaign on the top end of a 2-1 record. Although their number of encounters was limited to three, the squad got a taste of varsity competitive play when it clashed with Lawrence Central, Southport, and Noblesville.

Sparked by the coaching of Walt Viellieu and Dean Evans, the gridmen made an impressive showing on all three occasions.

The season's most promising prospects for the '58 varsity were Center Mark English, End Chuck Poland, Quarterback Craig Reynolds, and Halfback Jack Schroeder, all of whom saw unlimited underclassman action this season.

Athletic stadium nears completion in 1958

Eighty acres of land behind North Central High School are devoted to physical education facilities. These consist of a football field and stadium with a ten lane track and space for field events. A baseball diamond, a practice field, four softball diamonds, five basketball, four volleyball, four badminton, four shuffleboard, and ten tennis courts, four horseshoe pitching areas and an archery range are also included.

Contained in the stadium building is a National Defense Cadet Corps (ROTC) rifle range and headquarters complete with classroom and teaching facilities. Also, dressing rooms for football and track, space for parking school buses, and an area for repairing mechanical difficulties which might arise with the buses.

Mike Vincz and Cliff Lambert get a glimpse of what the finished building will be like when the lockerrooms and showers are completed.

The stadium was one of the new additions to the North Central campus this year. Inset: Construction on the interior of the structure was not completed until late spring.

Paced by sophomore Brad Waltman, the North Central harriers ended their 1957 campaign by winning four and losing four in dual meets. They also captured two second place honors and one third place honor in tri-meets.

The squad earned a noteworthy third place in the Indianapolis Sectionals, placing just under Shortridge and Tech respectively. The thinly clads, beaten only by Ben Davis, had to settle with a second place in the Marion County Cross-Country meet. In spite of a mediocre record throughout the season, the squad progressed through the sectional to the state finals, placing tenth in a field of 20 top teams in the state.

Eight of the boys on the varsity will be returning for next year's action. The squad was composed of six sophomores, two juniors and three seniors. Returning sophomores are Wayne Burns, Mike Ewing, Jon Hall, Carl Henry, Brad Waltman, and Mike Vince. Steve Jay and Dave Newkirk are the returning juniors. Larry Coffey, Jim Peterson, and Fred Wilson are the graduating seniors.

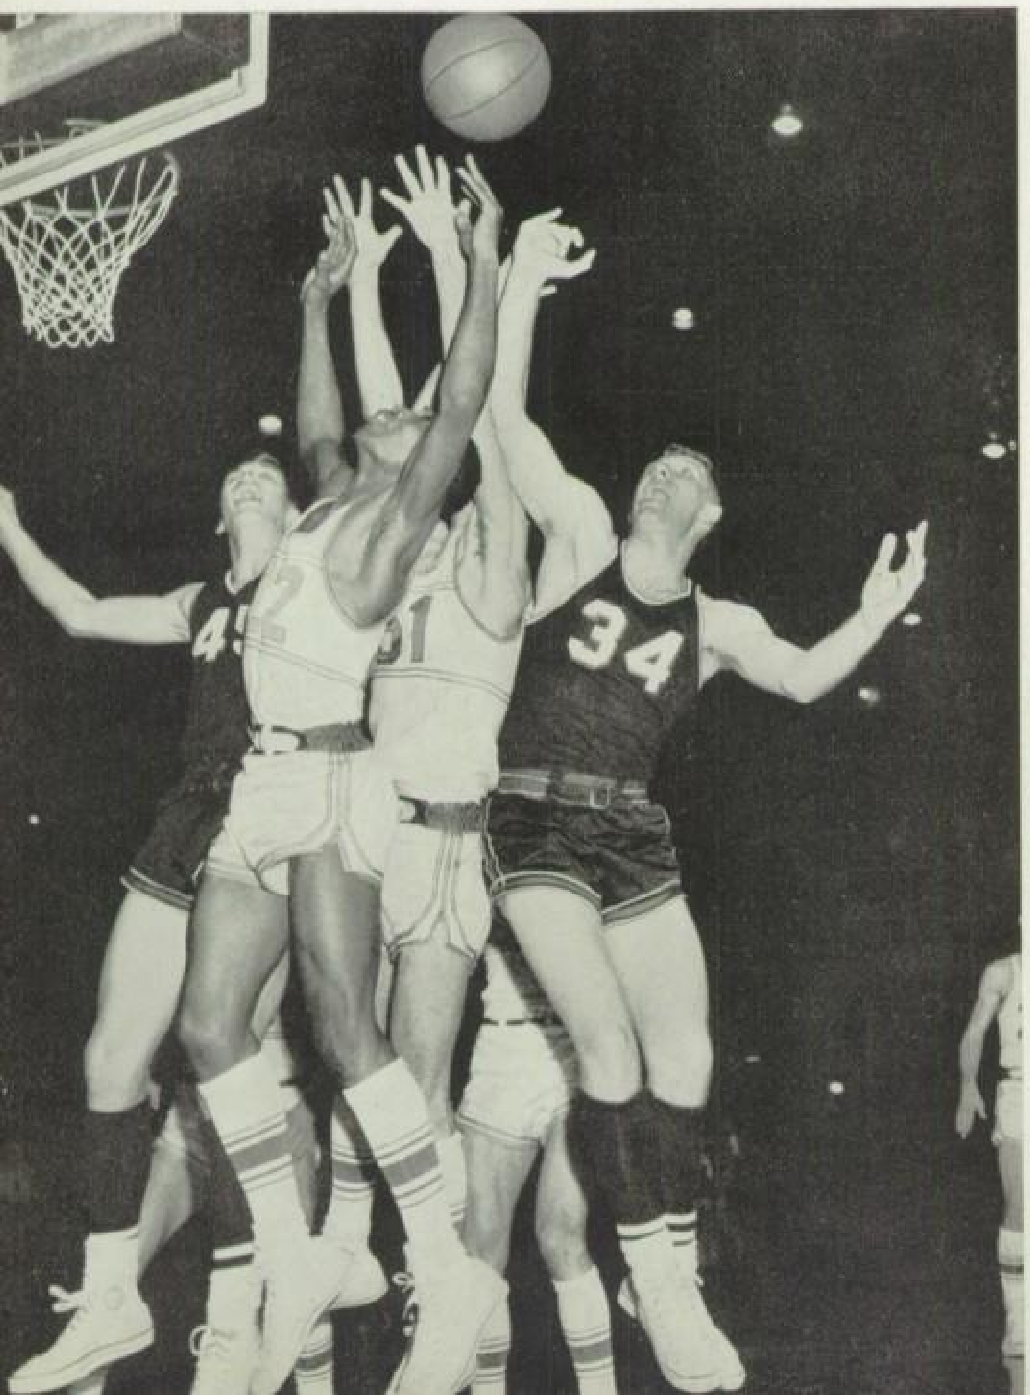
Netmen reach final game of County Tourney,



A more experienced and greatly improved varsity squad advanced to the final game of the Marion County Tournament this year before bowing to the perennial county power, the Ben Davis Giants, 68-51. Coach Marvin Wood watched his team progress through the tourney by first gaining a 66-49 verdict over the Speedway Sparkplugs. Then the round-ballers outlasted Warren Central for the second time in the season, 56-51. Next, the Panthers avenged their first loss of the regular season by downing Lawrence Central's Bears, 58-51, in the semi-final game of the tourney.

North Central ended the basketball season "in the black" with 13 wins and 11 losses. In sectional play, the Panthers "went wild" to win over Granville Wells, 73-52. Defeat came at the hands of Zionsville, the school that won the sectional.

Herb Spier, 45, and Jim South, 34, both try for a rebound from a shot made by a teammate in the Ben Davis game.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

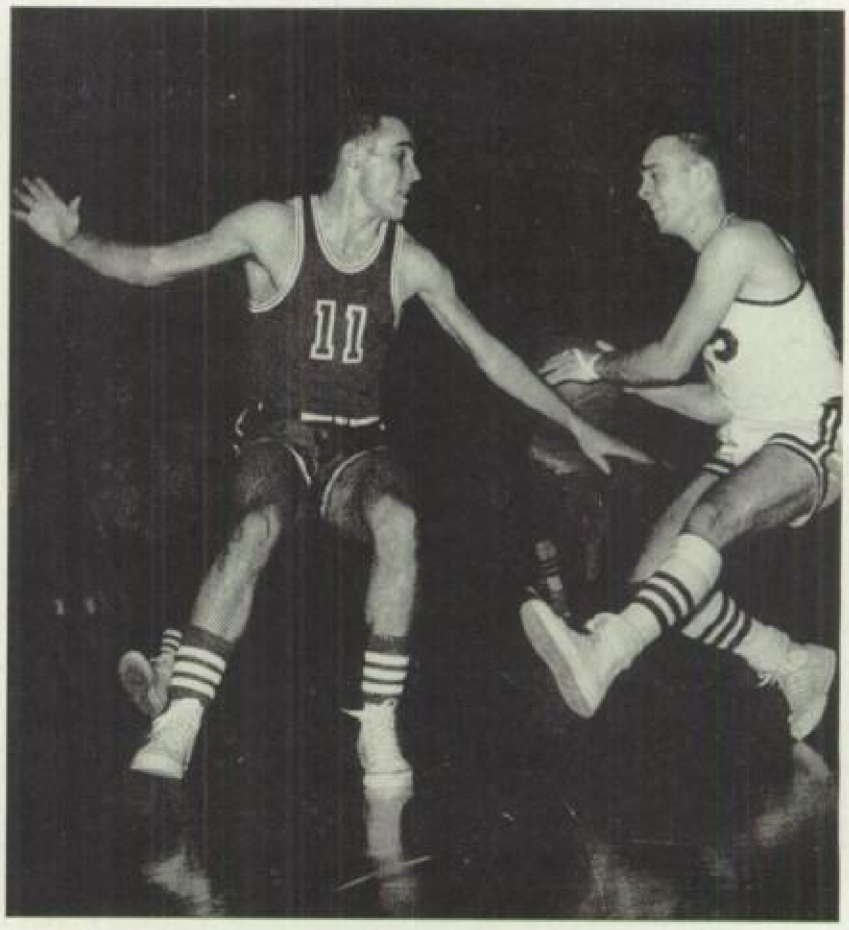
The 1957-58 basketball season ended with a distinct improvement over last year. In regularly scheduled games, the squad tallied nine wins and nine losses.

The Panthers won over Warren Central 61-59; Beech Grove 79-44; Westfield 69-47; Southport 63-58; Madison Heights 66-59; Noblesville 50-43; Connersville 46-33; Terre Haute Wiley 60-53; and Frankfort 59-44.

The varsity five lost to Lawrence Central 58-53; Zionsville 76-62; Elwood 68-58; Martinsville 66-54; Northwestern 55-51; Manual 46-45; Ben Davis 60-54; Crawfordsville 58-48; and Lebanon 46-43.

County Tourney fans saw the North Central squad down Speedway 66-49; Warren Central 56-51; only to go down to defeat at the hands of Ben Davis 68-51 in the final game.

In sectional play North Central defeated Granville Wells 73-52 and in turn, sectional winner Zionsville downed them 55-50.



Ed Bryan is closely checked by Foster of Manual, as he "slides in" in an attempt to pass to a teammate. Manual went on to win one of the closest games of the season, 46-45.

Central grapplers post victorious 10-5 record

North Central's grapplers jumped the .500 mark in the 1957-58 year with a 10-5 record in the final tally. The squad started their campaign by bowing to Southport 35-17, before plunging ahead to four straight victories over Park 50-5, Deaf School 51-5, Madison Heights 33-15, and Decatur Central 32-14. In the County Meet, the matmen placed third below Ben Davis and Southport respectively.

The Panthers then faced the Ben Davis Giants in a dual meet, and again found themselves on the short end of the score 30-16. The grapplers outmatched New Castle 32-16, Marion 25-21, and Logansport 23-21. A loss to Crawfordsville 33-11, was followed by two successive victories over Franklin Township 29-18, and Wood 31-14. North Central went down to defeat at the hands of State Co-Champs, Broad Ripple 42-5, and Shortridge 28-16, in their final meets of the season.

Larry Warren captured the county crown for the 145 pound class, placed second in the sectionals, and third in the regionals. Jack Mendall earned a second place in the county and in the sectionals. Steve Jay and Phil Shaver gained second place honors in the County Meet, while Don Black, Steve Hockman, Ed Krause, and Pete Kuilema captured third.

Larry Warren and Steve Jay put on a demonstration of the "scientific" way to win wrestling matches.

Bob Carr displays superior form as he sets a fast pace in winning the high hurdles against Broad Ripple.

North Central's first year cindermen came home last spring (1957) with a first and a second place in tri-meets, one win in dual meets, a third and a fourth place in relays, and seventh ranking in the county for a mediocre 1957 season.

Energetic yell-leaders cheer teams to victory

Varsity and reserve cheerleaders did much to promote good team and school spirit with their bouncy cheerleading. Regardless of the weather, they attended all football games clad in red slacks, white letter sweaters, and in colder weather, white earmuffs and gloves. When the basketball season rolled around, the girls donned white pleated skirts, white letter sweaters, and red scarves. Their alternate outfits for basketball were short jumpers made of black felt worn with red and white cotton blouses and red ties.

Joni Tischer, who was always in front of the stands in the first few football games of the 1957 season, was injured seriously in an accident early in the year and was unable to complete the year on the squad.

Joni was one of the five varsity cheerleaders who made the pep sessions more interesting and spirited.

At sectional time, the varsity gals traveled to Zionsville along with the fans and team to cheer the NCHS varsity on to victory.

Fans go wild as Betty Lankford and Susie Koffenberger lead one of the peppy North Central cheers during the final game of the County Tourney against Ben Davis.

Physical education program varied at Central

The administration believes that building strong bodies is as necessary a part of the school's work as developing keen minds.

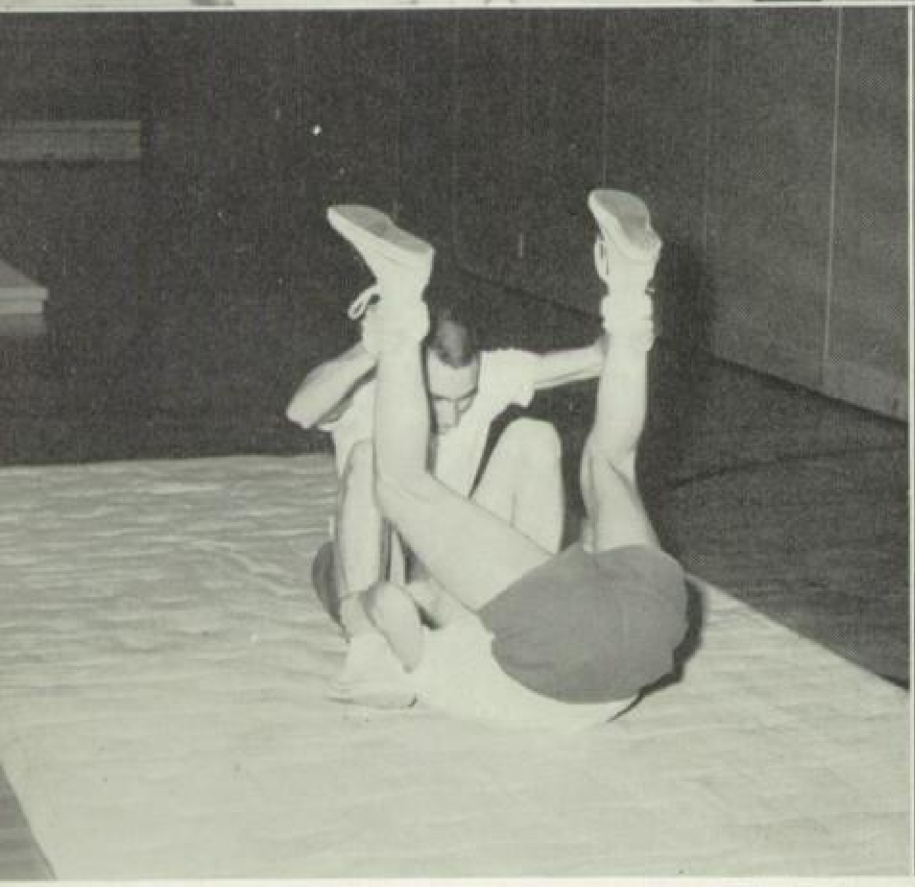
At NCHS, both boys and girls engage in various exercises, as well as in tumbling, basketball, archery, softball, and basketball. Other seasonal activities, such as square dancing, are added for variety. Mrs. Margaret Dunlap, George Oberle, and Bill Smith are the gym instructors.

Upper left—Friday was "square dance day" for phys ed classes.

Upper right—Boys in George Oberle's sixth hour gym class learned how to hold a pyramid without falling. Just after the picture was snapped—they fell!

Lower left—Tumbling was taught also. Both boys and girls participated in tumbling exercises.

Lower right—Mrs. Dunlap gave her girls a chance to practice better coordination of their ball-handling before attempting basketball and volleyball.



Intramurals provide extra sports participation

Basketball, volleyball, and ping-pong, are all included in the intramural program at Central which helps enrich physical and mental health as well as normal growth. Intramural sports also develop group and team spirit. Fourteen volleyball teams and fourteen basketball teams were organized, and seventy boys participated in ping-pong games. A sense of responsibility was given the boys on the Intramural Council. They helped set up rules and assisted Mr. Harner, faculty sponsor, with his work.

Upper Left—Competition was high when volleyball games began each Tuesday and Thursday during the activities period.

Sixty-one members of the faculty have the task of pounding worldly knowledge into the heads of 539 sophomores, 318 juniors, and 226 seniors. Each of these classes elected a council to formulate its policies and to unify its members.

This year is memorable because it marks the graduation of the first Senior Class of North Central.

People

Becky Teague, junior; Cindy Bauer, sophomore; Dean Evans, social studies teacher; and Ferd Samper, senior, are representatives of the people at North Central High School.

Large administrative and service personnel

Dean B. Smith, principal, who successfully guided North Central to a North Central Association rating, continued his job of molding the school into one of the finest in the country.

Callison H. Simon, assistant principal, became a seasoned administrator this year as he "hit his stride" in the job of supervising student activities and co-ordinating school policies.

(above) Mr. Everett Light, superintendent, pauses at the door to the high school building, on his way to a conference. (right) Mrs. Lydia Mitchell, registrar, keeps intricate records and computes grade averages for all North Centralites; Mrs. Pauline Scott is Mr. Smith's private secretary; Mrs. Grace Whitsitt, serves as secretary for guidance and attendance; and Mrs. Estelle Behan mans the switchboard half days, as receptionist.

needed to run North Central with efficiency

Principal Dean B. Smith, who helped organize the school for its 1956 opening, saw the fruits of his labor this year when North Central began to "click." Assistant Principal Callison H. Simon took on additional responsibilities as school life accelerated. Superintendent Everett Light visited the school frequently, advising and encouraging when needed. All three men consulted with faculty, pupils, and parents in the ceaseless drive to make North Central a top ranking educational institution.

The office staff completed the vast amount of work necessary to run a school of 1104 pupils and 62 teachers. Behind the scenes, service personnel worked constantly to keep the building warm and clean and the people well-fed.

Mrs. Geneva Kennedy, bookstore manager and school treasurer, leads a busy life adminstering the book rental system, keeping accounts, and ordering supplies.

Faculty busy with North Central evaluation,

(above) A copy of the page of the Northern Lights occupies the attention of Robert LeMaster, G. L. Woodruff, and James Hunter, of the Industrial Arts Department. (below) Robert Schlater and Hollace Arment of the Music Department and Mrs. Zelda Zoe Cassady of the Art Department work together on school functions such as the operetta, and various plays and programs.

The Triangle Club started the year off right by entertaining the faculty with a tea. Mrs. George Stark, as a parent-hostess, greets Mrs. Elizabeth Coffin of the faculty.

North Central evaluation took the time and concentrated efforts of all the faculty during the first semester and part of the second. Burton Brinkerhoff, Science Department, Edward Heinig, English, Miss Mary Doyle, school nurse, Kenneth Patton, social studies, Miss Carolyn Kleifgen, home economics, and John Shirley, English, look over one of the intricate booklets that had to be completed before the visiting committee arrived.

programs, classes, clubs, and activities . . . .

Mrs. Donna Grubbs, Mrs. Kathleen Keilman, Mrs. Edith Reese, and Frank Rhea, of the Business Department, are interested in a new machine provided for one of their courses.

The North Central faculty comes in a variety of sizes, from five foot to six foot nine. John Wendling proves handy in helping tiny Mrs. Marie North store books on the top shelf.

(above) Wax models are helpful to science teachers in their explanations. Walter Viellieu, Robert Watson, Keith Mohr, Robert Prettyman, and Earl Lindberg find a replica of a flower interesting. (below) Most teachers use visual aids to make instruction more vital. A model of an ancient Roman ship is being examined by language teachers John Wendling, Mrs. Katherine Wert, Miss Ruth Lesley, Mrs. Alice Kraft, Miss Cleo Kinnison, and William Bugher.

. . . and also have spare time accomplishments,

North Central teachers spend much of their lives at school, both during the day and in the evenings. In spite of this, they find time for outside interests.

Mr. Arment and Mr. Brinkerhoff concentrate on developing their family "combos," which play popular and classical music. Mr. Hunter raises chickens while Mr. Prettyman raises orchids. Mr. Harner "shoots" movies of his family and already has recorded 900 feet of documentary film. Some of the faculty members enjoy yard work in their new homes near the school. Most of the men are sports minded.

Travel rates high with the faculty and several have gone as far as Europe. Mr. Wendling, who once rode a bicycle from Hamburg, Germany, to Copenhagen, Denmark, also taught school in South America. Mrs. Kraft taught a year in London; Miss Kinnison studied in Rome. Miss Noffsinger conducts Miller vacation tours in the summertime.

Miss Doyle, Mrs. Wingfield, and Mrs. Dryden, who is a Lieutenant Colonel in the Marine Reserves, served their military hitches, as have many of the men. Mr. Jett and Mrs. Keilman have each helped write textbooks. Miss Mann, whose hobby is making hats, instructs a Butler University class. Many faculty members are working on their Masters. Mrs. Cassady, who has won $5000 in art scholarships, will graduate in the same class as her doctor husband.

North Central teachers are happy people with well-rounded personalities. They enjoy teacher-get-togethers and playing pranks on one another. This attitude is reflected in the friendliness of the school atmosphere and the lack of tension.

Record albums are just one of the aids the library provides English teachers. Mrs. Helen Wingfield, Miss Mary Mann, Miss Gletha Noffsinger, and Mrs. Marjorie Boles examine one of the latest. (below) Extra reading assignments are a requirement in English classes. Mrs. Ruth Kivett, Thomas Fisher, Thomas Jett, Mrs. Marion Dryden and Mrs. Marie North are often amazed at the variety of presentations made for book reports.

Current events as well as history of the past is taught by the North Central Social Studies Department. Lieutenant Charles Wilhelm, Charles Riley, Eugene Clones, and Harold Freeland locate a recent happening on the globe.

hobbies, and varied interests beside teaching

Guidance staff personnel tested and counseled North Central pupils on the three C's—curriculum, college, and careers. Mrs. Elizabeth Coffin, Miss Geraldine Bagby, Dr. Gene Schwilk, Mrs. Mildred Shirley, and George Oberle scan reams of material in their effort to help North Centralites plan wisely. In December, Dr. Schwilk was transferred to the administration office as assistant superintendent in charge of instruction, which includes the whole area of research, curriculum and pupil personnel.

Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus (Dean Evans and Mrs. Margaret Dunlap) were a jolly pair who distributed gifts at the teachers' Christmas party.

Asiatic flu, which hit the country very hard this year, caused a high rate of absenteeism among the faculty as well as the pupils. Dean Evans, counselor and coach, and Kenneth Warren, counselor, were absent when pictures were taken. Mrs. Marian Randall of the English staff resigned at the end of the first semester.

(above) Athletic coaches and physical education instructors are interested in both the physical and mental development of pupils. Norman Harner, Keith Stroup, William Smith, Marvin Wood, Mrs. Margaret Dunlap, and Thomas Bradley enjoy a sports model used as decorations for athletic banquets. (below) Many aids are used in the Math Department to further the understanding of the subject. Mr. Allen Weinheimer, Mr. Gordon Gish, Mrs. Betty Culp, Mr. Wilbur Richards, Miss Helen Noffke, Mrs. Edith Wisner, and Mr. Henry Harrison work out an advanced math problem on an enlarged slide rule.

Junior, Senior plans become traditions

Senior Class officers include Jim Peterson, vice-president; Adra Heider, secretary; Marcia Maher, president; and Chuck Lugar, treasurer.

"1-9-5-8, we're the class that's really great," echoes through the halls of North Central. Yes, the seniors are proud of their class, and well they might be. They have been the "top brass" for two years. They had to be the leaders, setting traditions; having nothing to look back to. Their every step had to be the right one.

All senior business was preliminarily thrashed out in council meetings, and was then brought before the class to be decided upon by the entire group. The council consisted of eight representatives from each senior homeroom and the elected officers.

Seniors celebrated Christmas by having a party and dressing like little children. To be admitted to this juvenile affair, each "child" had to bring a suitable toy. These were taken to Flanner House and distributed to many needy children.

The remainder of the senior calendar included the Senior Stunt Show, class day, the class picnic, and Baccalaureate. Commencement was held June 12. The Grad Dance at the Indiana Roof was followed by a breakfast at the Riviera Club.

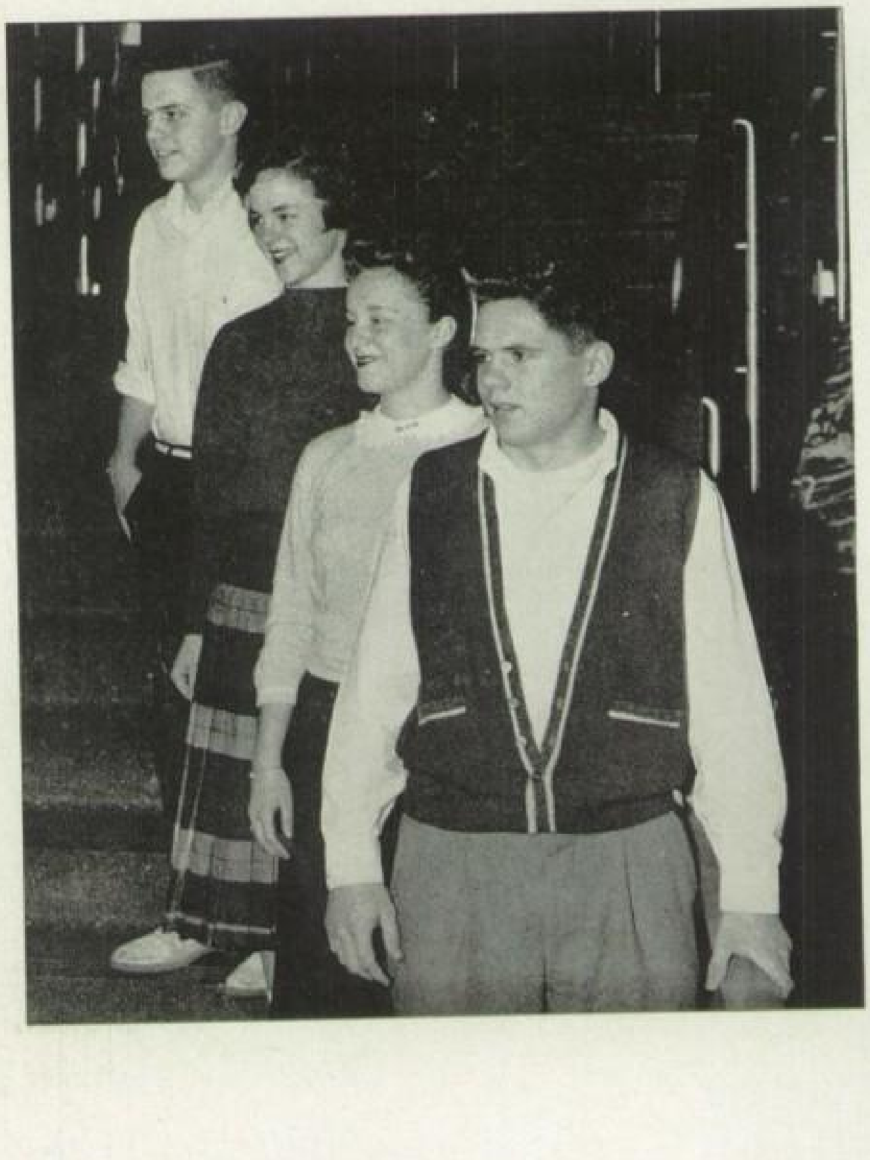
The Senior Class of 1958 was unique—it was the first class to be graduated from North Central High School.

The elected officers and a twelve member council set the wheels in motion for activities of North Central's second Junior Class.

Following in the footsteps of last year's Junior Class, this year's class successfully planned and produced the Junior Spectacular.

Through representation the juniors chose the school crest, thus being the first class ever to use the crest for their ring.

The Junior Prom, the big dance of the season for the class, was held May 3. Juniors invited the Senior Class and their dates to join in the festivities of the gala affair. Susie Cooling, Jody Ditzenberger, Nancy Elliot, Jan Eyden, Sharon Goodwin, Linda Hale, Pat Janes, Susan Koffenberger, Betty Lankford, and Nancy Wynn were named as candidates for Junior Prom Queen. Those named as candidates for Junior Prom King included Joe Brown, Tom Draper, Dave Epperson, Stan Hines, Steve Jay, Butch Rogers, George Sweet, Chip Wilhoit, Roger Williams, and Dick Young.



Junior Class officers are Tom Chase, treasurer; Bonnie Barr, secretary; Pat Merriman, vice-president; and Ed Copeland, president.
